

Area tax bill $14.8 million; collections begin

By HARRY BARNES
of the Press-Record

Quad-City area property owners began paying their 1979 tax bills this week—by mail, at local banks and to the collectors of the respective townships in which they live.

Overall, area property owners of Granite City, Nameoki, Venice and Chouteau townships have been billed for a total of $14,829,696 in real estate taxes. There are no personal property extensions to be collected this year.

The billing is an increase of $641,932 over last year's total real estate tax billing of $14,187,764.

Tax bills were placed in the mail, beginning Monday, by the office of County Treasurer Michael "Mike" Henkhaus after preparation of the bills was completed during the weekend. All bills are being mailed directly from the county treasurer's office this year, a departure from the practice last year in which some of the township collectors were permitted to pick up the bills and go over them for the correction of addresses.

Henkhaus said his office is experimenting this year in a procedure involving the mailing of an envelope addressed to the taxpayer in tax bills of four sampling townships, and a notice asking the taxpayer to send the check for payment of the tax bill in the addressed envelope. This would take the payment directly to the county treasurer.

The townships in which the testing is being done includes Granite City Township. This brought protests from City Treasurer Nick Petrillo, who also is the Granite City township collector. He said his office attempts to collect as much of the tax bill locally as is possible.

Petrillo said the local collection is important because tax collections are two months late and tax agencies are in serious need of tax revenue. His office, he said, is able to make a much quicker distribution of tax monies than is usually done by the county.

Granite City taxpayers are being billed for a total of $8,709,673 which is an increase of $467,330 over last year's real estate tax billing of $8,222,343.

Petrillo said taxpayers may pay their bills as soon as they receive them by mail, and may make payments to any of the Granite City banks, or to his office, by mail or in person, in the city hall here.

Nameoki Township taxpayers are receiving bills for a total of $2,749,234, a decrease of $65,924 below last year's bill of $2,815,158.

Frieda Ballew, Nameoki Township collector, said payments may be made in person or by mail to her home, 74

Maurine Court, Granite City. In addition, Nameoki taxpayers may make payments at the Granite City (Trust) Bank during regular business hours.

Total tax billing for taxpayers of Venice Township is $1,740,486, an increase of $320,010 over the billing of $1,420,476 a year ago.

Venice township taxpayers may pay their bills by mail or in person at 422 Madison Ave., Madison, according to Mrs. Margaret Reidelberger, town collector. The office will be open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily, Monday through Friday, for making payments in person.

Total tax billings for property owners of Chouteau Township amount to $1,630,303, a decrease of $99,484 below last year's billing of $1,729,787. While personal property tax extensions are eliminated this year under mandate of the 1970 Illinois Constitution, losses in tax revenue incurred for that reason are to be made up by a state-paid replacement tax. Henkhaus said that he believes virtually all tax revenue losses will be made up in this manner and that in some instances tax agencies will receive more than the amount of the actual loss.

Taxpayers throughout Madison County will have an extra 30 days to pay their bills this year. Henkhaus said the first installment may be paid without penalty through Sept. 22.

The second installment may be paid without penalty through Nov. 22. Tax bills are two months late this year because more than 1,000 objections were filed against property assessments, requiring hearings by the Board of Review.

Normally, area tax agencies have already received at least one tax distribution by this time of the year to help meet operating costs.

Ninety days to pay taxes

Madison County taxpayers, including those of the Quad-City area of Granite City, Nameoki, Venice and Chouteau townships, will have 90 days to pay their tax bills this year, according to Michael "Mike" Henkhaus, county treasurer.

The first installment deadline is Sept. 22, with Sept. 23 as the first penalty date. The second installment may be paid through Nov. 22, with the first penalty date on Nov. 23. Property on which taxes are not paid by Dec. 31 will be offered at a county tax sale.

Girl, 16, dies in Wyoming crash

Three members of family hurt seriously

Lisa White, 16, of 1362 Norwood Drive, was killed and her father and two of her sisters were seriously injured in a three-vehicle accident about 10 p.m. Monday in Wyoming.

Listed in critical condition, with skull fractures and concussions are the father, Grady White, 51, and Lisa White's twin sister, Lori, 16, who are in the Utah Medical Center in Salt Lake City. Also injured was Leslie White, 12, who suffered a broken leg and hip and is recuperating in Primary Children's Hospital in Salt Lake City.

The Whites were enroute to Yellowstone National Park, in northwestern Wyoming, where another of Mr. White's daughters, Linda, 18, was working for the summer. They planned to pick her up and vacation in the west before returning to Granite City, according to a family spokesman.

Relatives here have been told that the Whites' van was northbound from Rock Springs, Wyo., toward Yellowstone Park and was about 14 miles north of Rock Springs when a southbound pickup truck, followed by an auto, approached them.

For an unknown reason, the auto struck the rear of the pickup truck, which veered to the right. The auto went to the left, crossed the center line and struck the Whites' van head-on, relatives were told.

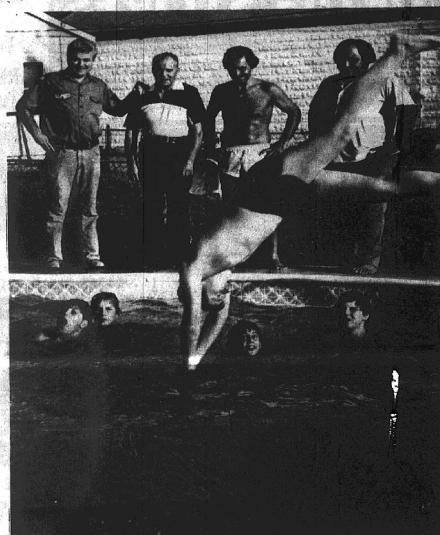

Lisa White died later at Sweetwater County Memorial Hospital in Rock Springs, according to authorities. The other three occupants of the van were flown to Salt Lake City for surgery, according to word received here.

Kevin Jones, 18, Kingwood, Tex., a passenger in the truck, was killed when he was thrown from that vehicle and it apparently rolled over him, reports from Wyoming indicate.

Salem named to personnel post

By BILL WINTER
of the Press-Record

Terry M. Salem was hired Tuesday night as the Granite City school district's personnel administrator, and Irvin Slate Jr. was employed as bond attorney for the fall 1980 election on remodeling of schools.

An assistant principal of Granite City High School North for the past seven years, Salem will become administrative assistant in charge of personnel, succeeding the late Gerald W. Brown.

Salem will plan, organize and manage the district's program for personnel recruitment, selection, separation, compensation and placement, and staff development and evaluation, reporting to Supt. B. J. Davis.

Harold E. Hillmer will continue as employee relations administrator and collective bargaining negotiator, reporting to Supt. Davis.

Since Mr. Brown's death this year,

Hillmer has handled personnel as well as employee relations duties. The two positions may be merged upon Hillmer's retirement later in the 1980s depending on the workload at that time.

The new personnel administrator in his position at North High has handled data processing, scheduling, student discipline, activities supervision and related administrative duties.

Salem joined the Granite City school system in August 1963, teaching German and English for one year at Prather Junior High School.

He then became a teacher of German at Granite City High School South, and was a South counselor at the time he was promoted to North assistant principal when the new high school was opened in the fall of 1973.

Salem resides at 3836 John Glenn Drive with his wife, Marge, and their children, Lia, a senior student at North, and Mike, a Grigsby Junior High eighth grader.

Terry Salem's father, Lester Salem, is a former Venice School Board president.

The new personnel official is a graduate of Venice High School. He earned a bachelor degree at Eastern Illinois University and a master degree at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

He has served on the boards of directors of the Coordinated Youth Services, Quad-City Mental Health Center and St. Louis Civic Ballet. He is a former staff member of the Mississippi River Festival.

In selecting a bond attorney for the special election to be conducted this fall, the Board of Education specified that Slate is to receive $65 an hour while preparing bond issue documents, a payment not to exceed $7,000, but he will be paid only if the $2,900,000 structural remodeling program is approved by voters.

The Granite City will work closely with Chapman and Cutler, nationally recognized Chicago bonding attorneys, who were employed at the Aug. 5 school board meeting.

No date for the election has been set, but it will be held prior to Dec. 1. Further planning may take place at the Aug. 26 board meeting.

Venice to take own census

By MICK STRANGE
of the Press-Record

The city of Venice will conduct its own census count within the next week to 10 days.

The count will be taken by the aldermen of each ward, with the assistance of volunteer citizens of the respective wards.

A crisis situation exists due to what Venice Mayor Tyrone Echols believes is an error in the official U.S. census that listed a 28 percent decline in population from 4,660 persons to 3,371.

"Our people are just not aware of the importance of the census. This could cost the city $40,000 or more in lost revenue," Echols said.

"The aldermen themselves must lead the way, and go door to door in their own wards with a few dedicated volunteers."

"If this is not done and done right away we will most definitely see cuts. Recreation and senior citizens programs will go."

"Then police and fire protection will have to be cut. Eighty percent of our police protection comes from federal revenue sharing funds and these funds are awarded on the basis of population."

"The census also affects motor fuel tax money, nutrition programs, our school district, the need for new housing and the need for improving housing."

"I have a new form from the government that is a lot simpler, and I will get these duplicated."

"I just came attended a citizens meeting on this problem that I at-

Preliminary plans for new port office building

Construction of a permanent office building for the Tri-City Regional Port is drawing nearer, commissioners indicated at a monthly board meeting Monday evening.

They authorized entering into an agreement with Ralph Korte Construction Co., Highland, to prepare preliminary specifications for a "design-build" office structure.

Up to $1,500 may be expended for the preliminary plans, the port board decided.

Increasing shipping volume at the port and related storage and processing activities were cited in the decision to proceed with the office building proposal.

On its low bid of $47,644, Kelly Track Co. of St. Louis was awarded a contract to construct railroad projects totaling 1,760 lineal feet, including four switches, with existing tracks to be realigned.

Other bidders were Atlas Track Co., St. Louis, and Longwill-Scott, St. Louis. The work will include expansion of trackage in the area of the original Bulk Hurtis Terrell, 67, of 2413 Edwards St., was admitted to St. Elizabeth Medical Center for observation after his auto was involved in a three-vehicle accident on Edwardsville Road at 13th Street at 3:30 p.m. Monday.

According to officials reports, Terrell's auto was stopped southbound on Edwardsville Road, waiting to turn left, when it was struck from behind by the auto of Kenneth Harris, Jonesboro, Ill.

The impact spun Terrell's auto into the northbound lanes where it collided with the oncoming auto of Albert Stevens, 2302 Adams St.

Harris was charged with failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident and Terrell was taken by a Granite City ambulance to St. Elizabeth Medical Center.

Area Chamber of Commerce views outlined to mark observance here

Kenneth Evers, president of the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce which will observe "Chamber of Commerce Week" Monday through Friday warned today against a pessimistic outlook due to economic conditions and suggested the community pursue positive thinking for area development.

Members of the Chamber will conduct "Blitz Days" during the observance of the local Chamber of Commerce Week by calling on Merchants and Citizens in the business districts of the area.

In a statement issued Wednesday, Evers, who is manager of Illinois Bell, said:

"One of the things we must guard against in viewing the future of this or any other area is letting the long range view be darkened by immediate clouds on the horizon. This is not to say that we should not be concerned about immediate problems such as industry closings, but we must never let these problems obscure the positive points which we must sell to retain our current industries and attract new ones."

The Tri-Cities area has always been an attractive place for industrial development. It is not by accident that we have become a center of inland port activity, steel production, and its associated industries. And, given the current energy needs of this nation, our future is even brighter for development than our fabulous past.

The reason for this lies in two unshakable truths about the area. The first is that it is situated now as in the past on the mightiest waterway in the nation linking the Gulf to the Atlantic through a series of inland passes capable of bringing raw materials from the South and shipping finished products to Chicago and ultimately the world.

For that matter, the route can be reversed, but we sit right in the middle of it all. Couple this with our outstanding rail system and we find a transportation hub unique not just to the nation, but the world.

The other unchanging truth is summed up in a single word—Coal. Granite City was founded on top of virtually limitless supplies of Illinois coal. This is what built the area and sustained it and it is what will continue to be its driving force. Albeit that at this time, Illinois coal has fallen into disfavor with the environmentalists because of high-sulfur content, the conversion of coal and removal of sulfur in projects such as the Wood River kiln-gas process on the proposed Clark Oil Company conversion now in the feasibility phase, again underscore the future of coal. As goes coal, so goes our area and coal is already considered America's "Ace in the Hole."

Combine the river, the coal, the rails, and about all the people whose skills and productivity are second to none in the nation, and you are able to see beyond the clouds on the horizon to the dawn of a new day of industrial growth for our area.

In that meantime, we must work diligently to make sure that the industries we already have and businesses of our area are treated well and are happy here. The future is bright and we must continue to make the present bright as well.

To this end, the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce is dedicated.

CURIOSITY

That's how the old saying has it. Kids have that in common with cats—CURIOSITY. Medicines, both prescribed and over-the-counter, are generally not for children. Condemnations in Venice

The Venice City Council Tuesday evening passed a resolution to begin condemnation procedures against several structures felt to be unsafe and creating a hazard.

Among the structures ruled unsafe are: 519 Salveter Ave., 1101 Logan Ave., 1005 Calhoun Ave., 1112 Market St. and 1321 Robin St.

The McKinley bridge traffic report for the month of July showed that 350,990 vehicles crossed the bridge for a daily average of 10,351. This is a decline of 88 vehicles compared to July 1979.

The police report showed 33 adult arrests and two juvenile arrests for the month of July with $345 collected in fines.

A request for a light in the alley of Washington Avenue was referred to committee.

Uncertainties vanished in August 1979, when the SIUC School of Law Dean Hiram H. Lesar and a party of area legislators and other officials, wielded ceremonial shovels to break ground for a new $7.6 million building. It is expected to be completed late next summer.

GOP adds to county's ballot, sees 'big year'

Madison County Republicans this week formally designated Dr. Felicia Koch of Granite City as their Nov. 4 candidate for county coroner.

They also selected William Hardin of Godfrey to run for clerk of the Third Circuit court. The nominations took place as more than 300 of the party's faithful gathered at the Edwardsville American Legion home.

Dr. Koch will upgrade the office of coroner to that of a medical examiner, it was asserted by Dr. Edward Ragsdale, county Republican chairman.

"Having a medical doctor in the coroner's office can be useful in murder investigations through providing better evidence for police," he commented.

Dr. Koch is a past Illinois "mother of the year." The veteran physician has been active in the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce as a vice-president, and was the charter president of its Women's Division.

Hardin is owner of Bill's True Value Hardware, Hobbies and Crafts Store in East Alton and has 31 years of business experience. Active in church work, he is a past president of the Eastgate Merchants Association.

Other Madison County Republican candidates this fall include Don Weber of Collinsville for state's attorney, Larry West of Alton for auditor and Joseph Young of Cottage Hills for recorder of deeds.

Weber was nominated without opposition in the March primary election. Young and West were written in winners in that balloting.

Dr. Ragsdale estimated that the Republican treasury for fall races in this county will be able to provide about $10,000 for the Weber campaign against State's Attorney Nicholas Byron. Weber has a private law practice.

While the party will not have as much money available to help the other candidates, Dr. Ragsdale views it as "the best ticket since I've been county Republican chairman" and said he is hopeful of more than one victory.

Noting that Republican Ronald Reagan is running against President Jimmy Carter in November, Dr. Ragsdale predicted that "a Republican year" is shaping up in the county, state and nation, "although we didn't know for sure that it was going to be a big year until this summer."

Posts bond of $50,000

Robert L. Burnett, 21, of Cottage Hills, Ill., was released on Saturday, Aug. 9, from the Madison County jail on $50,000 bond after being charged with two counts of aggravated battery.

Burnett allegedly shot against President Jimmy Richard Stahlheber in the chest and right arm with a .22 caliber pistol following an argument.

Pontoon Beach police believe four or five shots were fired on a lot in the 4000 block of Pontoon Road.

Stahlheber underwent surgery at St. Elizabeth Medical Center where he is listed in satisfactory condition.

School aid up; students decrease 3%

Governor James R. Thompson has approved legislation to increase state financial support for elementary and secondary schools by $100 per pupil for the 1980-81 fiscal year.

The governor approved House Bill 3114, which changes the school aid formula to raise the per pupil state payment from $1,988 to $1,463, at an added cost over the old formula of $200,300,000.

The total school budget approved by Thompson is $2.6 billion.

"Despite declining enrollments of about three percent a year, our public schools continue to receive top priority for available funds," Thompson said.

"I have approved total funding for our common schools this year that is $25.8 million more than recommended in the March budget.

"At a time when fiscal prudence is dictated by a national recession, the funds being provided for basic education are ample demonstration of the high priority afforded education by both the governor and the General Assembly."

Earlier, Thompson signed legislation to provide: $1.5 billion in distributive aid under the formula; $399 million in General Funds categorical grants for mandated and other grant programs such as special education, bilingual education, vocational education and gifted student programs; $33 million for operation of the State Board of Education; $281 million in teacher retirement support at the payout level; And $441.6 in non-general revenue grants for economically deprived children, school nutrition programs, vocational educational and programs for the handicapped.

The formula changes approved by the governor provide continued phase-in of improvements in the formula begun in 1975-80, including "full access to state aid dollars by all districts, thereby reducing the incentive to increase taxes."

Playground to be replaced

Plans for the replacement of the playground near the main concession stand in Wilson Park are being finalized with Granite City Township officials prior to a bid call by the township for four pieces of equipment to be utilized at the site.

The Town Board has appropriated $12,000 for such use and will call for bids as soon as possible. Bids will be received by Sept. 2.

Park commissioner Jeff Worthen met with Township Supervisor Nelson Hagauer last week to discuss the project.

The new playground will consist of a 70-foot diameter circle encompassed by four corner play areas for a total area of nearly one acre.

An artist's drawing of the playground was used during the discussion by the board of commissioners at Wednesday night's meeting.

A Natureville Five Special playground apparatus will be placed in the large circle in the center of the proposed playground. It will be constructed with a special ramp for children confined to wheelchairs.

In three of the corner areas, a rubber chair swing set with four chairs, a heavy duty tripod swing set with six splashproof seats and a trailblazer slide with special handrails for the handicapped will be placed.

In the remaining corner area a 10-foot diameter whirl, or merry-go-round, will be placed. It will be purchased by the park district.

Approximate cost of the four pieces of equipment to be purchased by the township is $12,000. The park district will be required to pay any freight costs involved with the project.

It was announced that the net profit from the five-day Fourth of July festival was $2,740.77.

In other business, the Trailriders Saddle Club and the Lincoln Place Mothers Club were granted use of the Lincoln Place Community Center for their monthly meetings through the beginning of June. Both clubs have used the facility in the past.

A letter was received by the board from George Cook, director of the annual football tournament, requesting use of park diamonds to conduct the tournament this year. The board of commissioners approved the request. The tournament will take place from Sept. 8 through 13.

The board passed a resolution designating Commissioner David Nolan as delegate to the annual convention of the Illinois Association of Park Districts.

which will be held in Rosemont, near Chicago, on Saturday, Nov. 15.

Designated as first alternate delegate was Brown and as second alternate was Bill Penock, director of recreation for the park district.

It was announced by Brown that the annual picnic for park district employees will be on Tuesday, Aug. 19, at shelter two in Wilson Park.

A summary of water samples taken from the swimming pool by the Illinois Department of Health was discussed and it was noted that several problems at the pool have been eliminated.

There had been a loss of water in the large pool which has been corrected and the baby pool had been down for four days due to a motor and filtration problem, but the problems have been resolved and the pool has been placed back in operation.

Opening of the ice rink was discussed as was the ice time for the Granite City Amateur Hockey Association. The association has asked that they be allowed to conduct a Learn to Play Hockey program at the rink and the board approved this request and agreed that no ice time charge will be made for the educational program.

A tentative opening date for the rink has been set for Oct. 12.

The monthly treasurer's report was approved by the board.

A discussion about the condition of the water in various locations in the Sieveking Gardens. Stagnation of the water is the basic problem. It was noted that this stagnation leads to a scum build up.

Brown was directed by the board to have the maintenance crew keep the areas as clean as possible and members of several board committees will begin looking into the problem and possible solutions.

Also approved by the board was a bid call for a copy machine to be used in the park district offices.

State programs aid handicapped

SPRINGFIELD — Between fiscal year 1971 and the present, Illinois has helped rehabilitate nearly 100,000 handicapped citizens while doubling its spending to aid the disabled, Comptroller Roland Burris says.

Issuing his latest monthly fiscal report, Burris noted that action is continuing in the state to further expand and broaden work with these citizens, beyond "just employment goals," with a shifting emphasis toward helping "more and younger handicapped Illinoisans to be self-sufficient."

The fiscal report, which details the status and goals of the new cabinet-level Department of Rehabilitation Services — formerly the division of vocational rehabilitation — also notes that the state continues in a solid fiscal position, but warns of a continuing threat of still higher unemployment in the future.

Revenues, Burris said, were $100 million higher than expenditures in the first 10 months of the fiscal year which will end June 30.

In the 18-month period, he said, month-end balances topped the half-billion-dollar mark for seven months.

Should forecasts of more unemployment be correct, Burris said, that factor plus some easing of inflation could indicate that the recession may be both sharper and briefer than earlier predicted.

On the rehabilitation programs, Burris said that in the last nine years, 99,743 handicapped Illinois residents completed agency rehabilitation programs and "returned to useful lives," while state spending for rehabilitation rose from $23.9 million in fiscal year 1971 to $47.7 million in fiscal year 1979, an increase of more than 100 percent.

Of more than $23 million spent by the agency in fiscal year 1979, Burris said, 27.7 percent went for diagnosis or evaluation, 24.6 percent for restoration, 29.7 percent for training and 18.5 percent went to direct support payments.

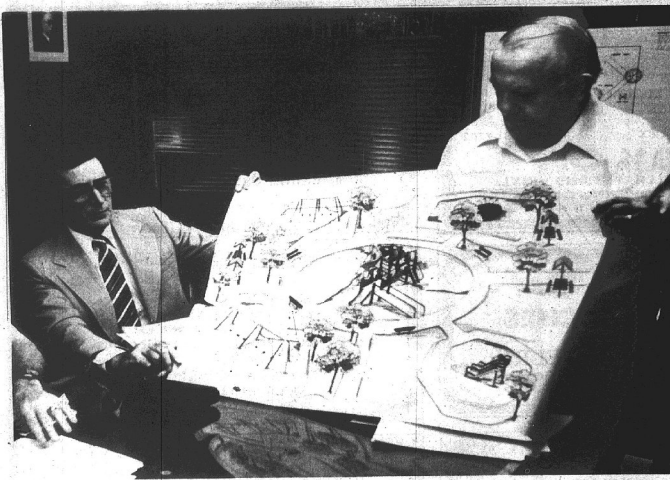

Because of changes since last July 1, the new code department has had authority to channel handicapped children into rehabilitation programs at an earlier age, which has resulted in 6,000 more clients, 700 more staff positions and a $15.5 million budget increase for the agency, he said.

LOOT GAS STATION

About $95 in cash was stolen from Nameoki Pina, 4179 Nameoki Road, it was discovered at 7:15 a.m. Wednesday. The front Plexiglass window was broken to gain entry. Assorted change was found strewn on the ground near the window. A hasp lock on a cabinet, under the cash register was pried open and the money box removed, police were told.

PACKAGE UNVEILED

On July 31, 1979, New York City Mayor Abraham Beame unveiled a broad austerity package including a wage freeze for all city union workers.

ONE-ACRE PLAYGROUND, which will replace the present playground at the end of 29th Street near the main concession stand, is discussed at the regular meeting of the Granite City Park Board of Commissioners Wednesday night. Harold Brown, standing at right, director of

Madison designates school as Dunbar-Johnson center

The former Dunbar School, scheduled to become a recreation center for the city of Madison, will be known as the Dunbar-Johnson Center, if the city adopts the recommendation of the Madison Board of Education.

The board met last night and passed a resolution designating the building in that name in honor of the late school board member Elvers C. Johnson, who died last year.

The board rejected a recommendation that the building be named the Elvers C. Johnson Center, noting that it has been known as Dunbar School for so long, it would be confusing to the community to remove the name Dunbar from its title. The city hopes to develop the center with a grant from the Economic Opportunity Commission (EOC). The city plans to lease the annex and north grounds for community recreation, including tennis courts.

In other business, the board:

—Hired Bill Tutka and Ernie Sedlack as custodians for the upcoming year.

—Accepted milk and snack bids on the basis of low bid to specifications.

—Approved the payment of a bill from McGraw Construction Co. for brick work at the high school.

—Authorized Superintendent of Schools John Palchett to resume negotiations with teachers on Friday, in an attempt to reach an agreement before the start of the new school year. The negotiations will be the first in about one month.

School Board President Sam Dymas said the board has heard no new word on the pending state investigation into allegations that the district received more state aid than it was entitled to, as the result of inflated attendance figures, primarily at Madison High School.

The Illinois Division of Criminal Investigation has turned all of its reports on the matter over to the Madison County state's attorney's office, but there have been no announcements by that office, thus far.

State agency plane an emotional issue

SPRINGFIELD — The state Department of Children and Family Services has leased a twin-engine airplane, apparently making it the only state agency to lease a plane for the use of its officials.

The lease, for the upcoming fiscal year, will cost up to $35,400. Department administrators actually began using the plane last month, under a separate two-month, $5,900 contract that began April 29. The aircraft was used about 40 hours last month.

The six-seat, 1978 Piper Seneca II is being flown by James Dolan, the agency's $33,038-a-year associate deputy director for program operations.

DCFS leases the aircraft from Triangle Air Service Inc., Olney.

A department spokesman admits state officials' use of almost any aircraft has become a "highly emotional issue" for Illinois taxpayers. But he said, DCFS's use of the leased plane saves tax dollars and allows the agency to operate more efficiently.

He said the department took a "very studied approach" to the lease and found it to be the best method of providing transportation for DCFS administrators.

Shots fired from vehicle

Larry Tegel, 2329a Maryville Road, was surprised at 2:20 a.m. Wednesday when a plastic liquor dispenser in his upstairs apartment exploded on a counter.

When Tegel investigated, he found a bullet in the sink which had apparently struck the dispenser.

Investigation showed that the bullet was fired from the street, possibly from a passing vehicle, and the shot went through the outside siding, up the stairwell, through the door of Tegel's apartment and struck the dispenser.

A spent .45 caliber shell casing was found on the sidewalk in front of the apartment building.

There were several reports of shots fired in the Quad-City area early Wednesday.

One report was received about 15 minutes before Tegel's apartment was shot. It concerned shots fired at Maryville Road and Parkway Drive. Other reports were received of shots being fired from a northbound vehicle in the 4000 block of Maryville Road.

Madison police were told that at 3:10 a.m. Wednesday, a shot was fired at a man from a maroon-colored Jeep. There were several young men and young women in the Jeep at the time, witnesses said.

The victim did not go to the police department to report the incident, as requested by officers, so there was no report on file on the incident at the Madison Police Department. Chief of Police Donald Bridick said this morning.

Emphasis on health by schools

By RAY SERRATI

SPRINGFIELD — It won't be long and the school bells will be ringing as the signal for the students to begin their treks back to school.

But this year school administrators, especially those who watch such things as the state aid funds coming to the individual school districts, also will be watching health reports. Those reports will have far greater meaning this year than they have had in the past.

The reason for the interest in the health records of the students in relation to money is a change made in the state school code last year by the General Assembly. The change hasn't been given a great deal of fanfare but it's there.

The change requires that all students in public, private and parochial schools be immunized against polio, diphtheria, tetanus, whooping cough, measles and rubella. All students also must have physical examinations.

It must be pointed out that basically the interest in the area of state aid will be among the public schools as parochial and parochial schools do not receive state aid. Under the state aid system, the state guarantees that a certain set figure will be spent for the education of each child in a public school. If that amount is not reached through local property taxes, then the state will make up the difference and this has been common for some time.

Each school district officially will have to show by Oct. 15 that at least 80 percent of the student body of the individual district has been immunized and has met physical examination requirements. If this is not done, then under the law the state aid payment, which will be going out on Nov. 22 to the school districts, can be cut by 10 percent. This 10 percent reduction can be carried on until the 80 percent figure is met.

The only exception to the law will be for religious or medical reasons.

There are a number of exceptions the students will have to present written statements. These statements will have to be signed by a doctor if the exception is based on medical reasons. If the students are not immunized because of religious reasons then it must be based on a religious teaching or practice.

This is the first time the state has tried immunization with the state aid payment. During the school year last year, some school districts did have some problems with immunization. But by linking the matter to state aid it caused school administrators into the picture a little stronger and they will certainly be watchful of the medical records.

SPRINGFIELD — Granite City's recovering from a separated shoulder he suffered in a "Just For Kicks" soccer game July 15. Following corrective surgery July 22 at Missouri Baptist Hospital, he is recuperating at home.

Mason, coach-player for the Saugat Footbal Club in the league, suffered the separation while playing in a game at the Granite City Army Depot. He is a former goalie for SIU-Edwardsville and for Granite City High School South.

AUTO IS STOLEN

The 1978 Chevrolet Monza Spider, two-door auto of Robert Hearn, 2149 Miracle Ave., was stolen from Wilson Park, near the ice rink, between 5:30 and 7 p.m. Wednesday. The auto has a spider decal on the hood and has a red interior, police were told.

Chorale auditions

Auditions for singers for the Masterworks Chorale, formerly the Belleville Area College Community Chorus, will be Aug. 19 and 20 at BAC, 2500 Carlyle Road. Auditions will be from 1 to 4 p.m. and 6 to 8 p.m. both days. More information about the auditions is available at 388-0732. Rehearsals will begin Sept. 2 and continue each Tuesday evening from 7:30 to 10.

The Chorale, a 40-member adult chorus of select singers, represents more than a dozen communities in this area. It has been acclaimed by music critics for "exceptional standards of professionalism." The name of the group was changed this year to more accurately reflect its repertoire and membership.

The concert season will begin Oct. 18, when the Chorale will present "A Little Night Music" at St. Henry's Church in Belleville. A fall special on Nov. 30 at BAC will give the audience an opportunity to sing along with the Chorale and orchestra in a performance of Handel's "Messiah."

A Christmas candlelight concert is scheduled for December at Blessed Sacrament Church in Belleville. "Madrigal Feast" at the Shrine of Our Lady of the Snows on Feb. 20-22 will be the highlight of the winter season for the Chorale. State to auction surplus vehicles

Approximately 800 surplus cars, vans, pickups and larger trucks will be available to the general public at auction Saturday, Aug. 23, in Springfield, Ill. The annual Department of Administrative Services state surplus vehicle auction will begin at 9 a.m. with registration at 7:30 on the grounds of Camp Lincoln, 1301 N. MacArthur. Prospective bidders may inspect the vehicles the day of the auction and two days prior to that date.

DAS Director V. A. Toolen said acceptable forms of payment will include cash, certified checks and travelers checks in increments of $500 or less. All company checks or personal checks over $1,000 will be approved as payment if accompanied by a letter of credit from an Illinois bank on bank stationery designating the maximum amount of approved credit. Payment other than cash will require a buyer to present two forms of positive identification, one bearing the buyer's photograph. Purchases must be removed from Camp Lincoln immediately following the auction.

Each year, surplus vehicle auctions provide deposits to the state general revenue fund. Last year's sale generated over $174,000.

Changes in Social Security disability

Major changes have been made in the Social Security disability program. These include changes in benefit computation, Medicare and the trial work period.

The new law limits the total benefits payable to a worker and his family.

Under the old law, there were times when a disabled worker and his family received more in benefits than the worker had received in take-home pay before becoming disabled. As a result, there was less incentive for the worker to return to work.

The new law limits family benefits to the smaller of 1½ times the worker's benefit or 85 percent of his average monthly earnings before becoming disabled. The limit has no effect on the worker's own benefit.

Eligibility for Medicare protection for people who receive Social Security disability benefits can be extended for 36 months after monthly benefits end. Under the old law, Medicare protection ended when benefits stopped.

This applies only to people who have not recovered from their impairments but have returned to work, and whose eligibility has not ended before December 1980.

Recent improvements in the law will help many disabled Social Security and Supplemental Security Income beneficiaries who wish to go back to work.

Under the old law, virtually all of a disabled person's earnings counted in deciding whether he or she was able to perform substantial gainful work.

Starting in December 1980, certain impairment-related work expenses that a disabled person pays can be deducted from earnings before deciding if the earnings show that the person is able to perform substantial gainful work.

These expenses include attendant care cost and the cost of medical devices, equipment, drugs and services necessary to control an impairment.

In the old law, disabled workers received benefits during a trial work period of up to nine months to test their ability to work, provided they continued to be disabled.

If at the end of this period the person was able to do substantial gainful work—generally indicated by earnings of $300 or more in 1980—payments stopped after an additional three-month adjustment period.

If the work attempt later failed, a new application was required before disability benefits could start again.

Under the new law, if a person's impairment makes it necessary to stop work again within a year after SS or SSI disability payments stop following a trial work period, benefits can be restarted automatically. A new application is not needed.

Also, disabled widows and widowers are eligible for a trial work period. These provisions are effective in December 1980.

People applying for Social Security disability benefits under the old law were responsible for charges made by their doctors, clinics or hospitals for preparing medical reports.

Effective this December, the Social Security Administration will pay a reasonable charge for any medical reports that it requests from non-federal institutions and physicians. A similar authorization already exists for the SSI program.

Social Security offices are located at 650 Missouri Ave., East St. Louis 63201 and 218 W. Main St., Belleville 62221. Quad-Cityans may call toll free by dialing the operator and asking for Enterprise 1-555.

State economy being hit hard

Illinois economic indicators are falling along with those reflecting national trends, according to University of Illinois economists and August Illinois economic data sheets released today by the Department of Commerce and Community Affairs.

"The economy has contracted abruptly since early this year," Professor Williams R. Bryan of the U. of I. Bureau of Economic and Business Research said, "following a prolonged period of lagging growth and gradual deterioration."

"There has been a weakening in demand, and that is reflected in some recent moderation in inflation and a dramatic reduction in interest rates."

Despite these relative improvements, unemployment throughout the nation continues to rise; construction starts continue to decline—more drastically in Illinois than nationally—and the Federal Reserve Board's index of industrial productivity has dropped at a rate of more than 13 percent annually. The index measures the output of the nation's mines, factories and utilities.

In July, Illinois unemployment stood at a seasonally adjusted rate of 9.5 percent, while the U.S. adjusted rate was 7.8. The Illinois rate rose 1.2 percent over June, while the U.S. increase was 1 percent.

Illinois is being hit harder than the nation as a whole because of employment declines in heavy industries, particularly those associated with the sagging U.S. automobile market.

Downstate agricultural or chronically economically depressed counties sustained unemployment rates that approached or exceeded 20 percent. This June, the rate was 20.3 in Alexander County, 18.9 in Hardin, 17.5 in Knox, 15.7 in Pope and 10.5 in Pulaski County.

Macon County (Decatur) appears to be the hardest hit of the industrial counties, showing a June unemployment rate of 14.2 percent.

Cook County had an unemployment rate of 8.8, one full point above the national average.

Counties such as Champaign and McLean, with work forces predominantly in "safe industries" such as higher education and instance, registered rates lower than the national average—6.7 in both counties.

Housing starts, a key measure of the economy in general and physical output, have registered further declines this year in Illinois and nationwide.

Projections for construction of residential units totaled $133 million in Illinois in June, down $16 million from the previous month, compared to June, compared to one year ago, was off 33 percent in Illinois, compared to an off-rate of 18 percent nationwide.

June non-residential construction fell by $29 million in Illinois over the May figure, and June non-building construction (bridges, roads, etc.) fell by $15 million.

The national industrial production index, a measure of production output, determined at 100 percent as a base, was 140 in June compared to 153 in January 1980.

U.S. industries operating at 84 percent production capacity in January were operating at 79 percent in May.

"So far this year," Prof. Bryan said, "personal income nationally has risen at a 5 percent rate, down from rates of 11 percent and 13 percent in 1978 and 1979."

"However, there is limited evidence that inflation has moderated in recent months. Since March, producer prices of finished goods have risen at a 6.2 percent annual rate. In the preceding three months these prices rose at a 19 percent rate."

"Consumer prices have risen at a 12 percent rate since March, compared to a 10 percent rate during the three preceding months."

"These reductions reflect a decrease in demand, just as the recent drop in interest rates reflects a major weakening in credit demand."

The Illinois and national farm economy continue under the effect of rising production input costs for such items as energy and fertilizer. And future market prices continue to rest heavily on weather and market conditions.

Weather in Illinois has not affected the soybean crop as adversely as in other states, and that could bring higher prices for the Illinois harvest.

Service facility to permit handling of more shipments. Also, tracks there will be connected with tracks in the area of the Granite City Shipwharf and the Tri-City Port general cargo dock.

Greater access to various areas of the port will be achieved as a result of the track construction work, and alternative routes will be more readily available in the event of a derailment, a board discussion showed.

The port commissioners in July approved purchase of 17 acres at the nearby A. O. Smith Corp. for construction of an additional yard and extension of the yard with the plant's internal rail system. This project remains in an active status, it was related this week.

Yearly budgeting was reviewed, and it was decided to extend Bulk Service Corporation's year-end grain products terminal operating contract from five years to 12 years.

The extension will add the corporation in improving its rail facilities and equipment at the terminal, which was owned by the Tri-City Port with a state government loan.

No new developments were reported on efforts to establish Interim Foreign Trade Zone warehousing in the 1900 block of State Street in cooperation with Fox Industries. Ultimately, it is hoped to build a Trade Zone warehouse structure at the port.

tended at the recreation center. I sent letters to each church so the people could again be told the importance of the census. There were only 14 persons there."

"What are the people going to do when we have to cut back to one or two policemen?" Echols asked.

Alderman George Mangiaracino said, "Why don't we put it in the Press-Record that we need volunteers and let the people call their aldermen?"

"I have been telling the council since March the importance of the census and the Press-Record has said a fine job coming what I have said. I am sure the people can read. What it takes is for you, the aldermen who should know your people, to get out now and start knocking on doors."

"We need to start in the morning getting the information. We need to get this situation rectified now."

"If our census shows we have dropped 26 percent then we have no complaint, but I can't believe that our population is that low," Echols emphasized.

"We have 200 public housing units in Venice. The national average per unit is 3.5 people. Among blacks it is 4.5."

"I think some of our people think the information goes to the housing authority. The census people are not concerned with housing authority rules and regulations. The census people do not release their information to any other government agency. It is strictly confidential."

"We as city officials must get our people to take this thing seriously or the entire city will suffer greatly. It is up to you aldermen. You know your wards better than anyone else," Echols said.

A special meeting of the aldermen and the volunteers they have recruited to help with a city census will be held at 2 p.m. Friday in the council room of the Venice city hall.

Persons wishing to help take the new census are asked to call their aldermen and attend the meeting. Instructions in the filling out of the new shorter form will be given at that time and according to the mayor the census should be finished within the week.

Illinois factor in Kennedy downfall

By ROBERT ESTILL

The Illinois delegation, holding strong for President Carter, contributed more votes than any state in the nation to the political downfall of Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., at the Democratic National Convention in New York recently.

The Illinois delegation cast 153 of its 179 votes against the Kennedy-backed "open convention" drive and in favor of the Carter-pushed "faithful delegate" rule. No other state cast that many votes in support of the president.

Under the rules that determined the convention's outcome, Kennedy counted only 26 Illinois supporters — 23 from Chicago and only three from downstate.

Illinois sent more Carter delegates — 153 — to the convention than any state in the nation. Kennedy could count only 16 delegates, all from Chicago, in the Illinois delegation.

All but 10 of the 163 Illinois Carter delegates supported the president by voting against the effort to block passage of the "faithful delegate" rule.

But 26 of the 163 delegates — all elected or appointed as Carter delegates — voted for the rule except Douglas Aurand of Rockford, Sue Morris of Waukegan and Clyde Jordan of East St. Louis.

The only support for the "open convention" came from those three Carter delegates, the 16 Kennedy delegates, and seven Chicago delegates who were pro-Carter but were persuaded to join the Kennedy camp in the attempt to reject the rule.

Aurand had said before the vote that he was supporting an "open convention" because he believes Democrats would emerge from the convention more united if they had a chance to vote for whomever they chose. He said he still planned to support Mr. Carter for the nomination.

Jordan, however, was irate when the convention defeated the minority report calling for rejection of the rule.

"I am not a robot. I am not a slave," Jordan said angrily as he explained why he, as a Carter delegate, was voting with the Kennedy forces.

"I am my own man. I am going to tell you there is not a damned bit of difference between what happened in Detroit and what happened here. They had a farce in Detroit, and we had a farce here."

Other Illinois Carter delegates, however, took the line that Kennedy was only trying to change the rules because he lost the primaries. They said allowing delegates to vote for whomever they chose — as they have in the past — would disenfranchise the voters who elected them because they were pledged to a particular candidate.

The rule vote in the Illinois delegation was about as expected. Sangamon County Democratic Chairman Todd Renfrow, the delegation secretary, had predicted earlier the Carter forces would lose about eight to 10 delegates on the rule issue.

Although the Illinois outcome was expected, there was a touch of irony in Illinois contributing more votes to Kennedy's downfall than any other state.

The late Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley had been one of the biggest boosters of the Kennedys. And it was Illinois' 26 electoral votes, won on a razor-thin margin, that put John F. Kennedy in the White House two decades ago.

And, as recently as 1976, Illinois voted for Gerald Ford over Jimmy Carter in the general election. It was only the second time Illinois was carried by an unsuccessful presidential candidate.

Chicago Mayor Jane Byrne, a Daley protégé, had endorsed Kennedy in the primary, a turnaround endorse-

Pontoon to occupy new building

by DONNA HARTWICK
of the Press-Record

Moving day for the offices of Pontoon Beach Village from its present location to the new Village Hall at 3910 Highway 111, formerly occupied by Central Baptist Church, was officially set for Wednesday, Aug. 20, at the board meeting Tuesday night.

The contract to buy the property was approved by the Village Board in April this year with the expectation that the move into the new quarters would be completed by July.

President Paul Bennett announced the next meeting on Tuesday, Aug. 26, will convene at 7 p.m. in the new facility.

During the meeting George Shanahan of Juneau and Associates presented a detailed review of the request for change of plans for the additional work on concrete curbing along Westgate, and street improvements on Lily and Lakeview, for a total cost of $26,069.

The request which includes adjustment on manholes and cleaning and excavating for streets, was approved by the board members.

Board members also agreed to pay $134,812 to Macclair Asphalt Co. for work on the street project and to pay Juneau and Associates the sum of $2,083 for engineering fees. The village received a grant of $134,812 from the Community Development Fund.

An overrun of $7,000 in costs for street improvement was not approved by the board at Tuesday's meeting.

A sealed bid from Robert Cowan was opened and his offer of $1,000 for a 1966 Chevrolet dump truck was accepted by the board.

In other business, Ordinance 265 relating to 9.99 acres on Highway 111, which was purchased in 1976 by the Village of Pontoon Beach, was read and board members agreed to annex the property to the Village of Pontoon Beach.

Bennett removed himself from the office of president for the next point of business and Loren Madison was appointed mayor pro-tem and advised to sign all documents in conjunction with the sale of 1.924 acres to Madison County Special Area No. 1, for the sum of $14,500.

Board members unanimously approved the sale of the parcel of land subject to a common drive easement to be included in the final arrangements.

The land purchase is to be used for a county sewer building.

Bennett resumed the role of presiding officer for the remainder of the meeting and presented bills for the month which were approved and ordered paid.

On the advice of Robert Hennessey, the village attorney, board members will seek prices for a new car for the police department. Bennett noted two advertisements were placed in the newspaper for bids on a new automobile with no results. Therefore the board will investigate the cost of a vehicle from area dealers and present the findings at the next meeting.

Hiring is topic of school board

Hiring decisions occupied the Granite City Board of Education during most of its adjourned meeting held Tuesday night at the board office.

After accepting the resignation of Edward Asadorian as a teacher at Granite City High School South, near the start of its 7:30 p.m. meeting, the board went into an executive session to discuss personnel matters.

Upon concluding its executive session at 10 p.m., the board resumed its public meeting for five minutes and then departed.

It was decided to hire Sheila McCauley of Granite City as an elementary school resource teacher for the 1980-81 year, and to employ Kathy Logan of Granite City as teacher of a behavioral disorder class at Parkview School in 1980-81.

Athletic extra-curricular assignments were approved, and it was noted that the learning center and teacher lounge are being moved to new locations within Logan School.

Supt. B. J. Davis reported that delays have occurred in obtaining new furnace boilers, and that emphasis is being placed on having each school building equipped with at least one operating boiler prior to the start of the heating season.

Steve Rogers, Collinsville, also reported that someone flattened the tires on his car in the bowling alley's parking lot sometime after police broke up the fight.

Later, Badgett discovered that someone had broken the rear window of his car and had kicked the passenger side door, denting it.

While police were attempting to remove a motorist from the parking lot, Norman McEuen Jr., of Collinsville told officers that a young man had shot him with a pellet gun during the disturbance. McEuen suffered a small grazing wound to his abdomen.

He also had a small cut to his right index finger he said he suffered while attempting to take the gun away from the youth who shot him.

McEuen said he was inside the bowling establishment when someone told him a fight had developed in the parking lot. When McEuen went outside and tried to stop the fight, a Granite City youth allegedly threatened and cursed him and then went to a car and took a pellet gun from the trunk.

The youth pumped the gun, pointed it at McEuen and pulled the trigger, firing it and striking McEuen's abdomen, police were told. McEuen then grabbed the gun, took it away from the boy and broke the gun on the pavement. He then chased the boy inside the bowling alley where the boy was able to escape.

Police arrested the two juveniles, who were from Collinsville and Granite City, and charged them with battery and criminal damage to property.

Another young man who had been swinging a baseball bat around during the disturbance, according to witnesses, was taken into custody, but was released, since no one wanted to sign a complaint against him and police had no evidence that he had a bat.

Later, Badgett discovered that someone had broken the rear window of his car and

Disturbances Monday outside bowling lanes

Two persons were injured, two others were arrested and one youth is being sought in connection with incidents Tuesday night in the parking lot of Tri-Mor Bowl, 3701 Nameoki Road.

Granite City police responded to a report of a fight at 10:05 p.m. and found about 50 persons in the lot, surrounding several persons who were arguing, officers reported.

Roy Badgett of 4734 Lake Drive, Pontoon Beach, pointed out two 16-year-old boys and said they had beaten him and broken his glasses. He suffered a cut to his right eye.

Badgett alleged the boys had knocked some papers from a table inside the bowling alley and when he stopped them outside and told them to pick the papers up, the fight broke out.

Man robbed and hit with brass knuckles

Billy Carlton of the 1700 block of Delmar Avenue told police Tuesday that he was the victim of a robbery and assault in the 1800 block of Cleveland Boulevard at 5 p.m. Monday.

Carlton said he was driving and another auto forced his car to the curb. The driver of the other auto got out, approached Carlton and struck the left side of his head with brass knuckles. He said the attacker said, "This is for snitching on..." and then named a local fence for stolen merchandise.

The man then grabbed $20 from the dashboard of Carlton's auto, returned to his car and left, police were told.

Charge driver after chase

John P. Brooks, 20, of 1012 Iowa St., Madison, was charged with fleeing from police, failure to ever have obtained a driver's license, two counts of reckless driving and two stop light violations after police alleged chasing his car from 22nd Street and Madison Avenue to 10th Street and Madison Avenue on Monday.

Police first were told that a car was being driven in a reckless manner near Wilson Park and had nearly struck a woman.

A description of the auto was radioed to all squad cars and a patrolman spotted the car southbound on Madison Avenue at 22nd Street and chased it, officers related.

Another squad car joined the chase and a Madison squad car set up a roadblock in the 1400 block of Madison Avenue, police said.

The auto went around the roadblock, nearly striking the Madison police car, authorities alleged.

The chase continued to 10th Street where the auto stopped near Brooks' home and the driver exited the vehicle. He was arrested without incident, police said.

Set up fund to assist victims of auto crash

A bank fund to aid the family of Grady White, 1382 Norwood Drive, three of whom are hospitalized in serious condition at Salt Lake City, Utah, has been established by neighbors at the American Heritage Bank.

The fund was set up by Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Peterson, 4115 Melrose Ave., neighbors and friends of the White family, who said a number of persons in the neighborhood have asked to contribute to a fund to aid White's daughters while the family members are hospitalized. Lisa White, 16, was killed, her father and a twin sister Lori, 16, were critically injured and another sister, Leslie, 12, suffered serious injuries, in a three-vehicle accident near Rock Springs, Wyo., Monday night.

Grady White and his two daughters are in Salt Lake City Hospitals. All have undergone surgery.

Mrs. Peterson said the Heritage bank will accept donations by mail or in person and deposit them to a bank account known as the Grady White Family Fund. She said she and her husband will receive contributions from residents of the neighborhood and deposit them to the account.

White and his three daughters were enroute to Yellowstone National Park to pick up another daughter, Linda, who has had a summer job at the park, when the accident occurred. They then planned to vacation in the west and return to Granite City.

Gas lamps will end on New Year's

WASHINGTON—Decorative gas lamps will be flickering off across the nation on Jan. 1 as part of an energy conservation effort initiated in 1978 legislation.

The Department of Energy's Economic Regulatory Administration now has adopted rules governing the shut-off of residential decorative lighting, according to Bob Cecil, a DOE spokesman. Decorative gas lighting in industry was terminated last November.

The natural gas saved by shutting off the ornamental lighting at residences could be the equivalent of the gas consumed to heat about 400,000 homes, Cecil said.

The gas consumed by 5.2 decorative lights, which burn around the clock, is equal to the amount consumed heating the average gas-heated home. And as of 1978, there were about 2 million homes in the country with decorative gas lights.

Rules adopted by DOE in May do provide for some exemptions, such as in the area of public safety, Cecil explained.

"Let us say, for example, that a decorative light at a home is the only street light for five blocks around, and the people need it to see the porch steps," Cecil said. "In that case, an exemption might be granted."

Authority for granting the exemptions will not be with the federal DOE but with the state regulatory authority, such as a public utility commission, or with the non-regulatory utility involved.

Enforcement will rest largely with the utility companies that provide the natural gas to the consumers.

"The customers will not have much of a choice, because the gas companies will not be allowed to put around the gas to feed the lamps," Cecil said. "That is how they will be shut off."

Phase-out of sales taxes on farm machines

Legislation signed Tuesday will phase out, over two years, the sales tax on farm machinery and equipment sales of $1,000 or more.

To qualify for the exemption, new and used machinery must be used in "production agriculture" under terms of House Bill 2921.

"I'm approving this legislation," Governor James R. Thompson said, "to help farmers. When they buy major equipment in Illinois, they no longer will have to pay sales taxes on it."

The new law will provide a 50 percent exemption beginning Sept. 1, 1980. After Aug. 31, 1981, the tax will be eliminated.

The governor said exemption of farm machinery "should have been part of a package exempting machinery used in production of manufactured goods, signed into law two years ago."

He said the accelerated phase-out of the farm machinery sales tax was designed to put both business and farm machinery sales tax phase-outs on the same schedule.

Farmers will pay $15 million less in sales taxes in this fiscal year, $56 million less in 1981-82, and $44 million less in 1982-83, the first full year of a full exemption.

Some farm implement dealers in Illinois have said they have lost sales to neighboring states, which exempted the sales tax on major equipment purchases.

Illinois beef plants closing

By CHARLYN FARGO

SPRINGFIELD—Large beef plants that serve Illinois have been going out of business in the last year, and state livestock producers are worried.

Several packing plants in Illinois and bordering states have closed recently.

There are two major beef packing plants left in Illinois. Five years ago, there were seven.

A DuQuoin plant has discontinued its beef operation, processing only pork and lamb.

Hunter's Packing Co. in East St. Louis, Ill., in Geneseo and Dubuque Packing Co. in Dubuque, Iowa, are also rumored to be near folding.

Industry leaders cite decreasing cattle herds in Illinois, increased volume of western processed boxed beef, stiff labor costs and high unemployment and workers' compensation expenses as reasons for the plants' troubles.

Cattle numbers are down partly because of a reduction in the number of cattle feeders in the state.

"Small to medium feedlot operations are getting older," said John Killam, president of the Illinois Animal Industries Council, a newly formed group composed of representatives of all facets of the animal industry.

"The business is so capital-intensive (that) younger people can't get into it," Cattle producers say they are caught in a vicious cycle.

decreasing cattle herds in Illinois, increased volume of western processed boxed beef, stiff labor costs and high unemployment and workers' compensation expenses as reasons for the plants' troubles.

"But the cattle have stopped being fed because of transportation costs," said Jerry Hicks of the council.

"We should be a livestock area because we've got the feed grains here."

However, the packers are going where the cattle are to save transportation expenses. "Before the plants started leaving five years ago, cattle in the Southwest brought $1.50 less than here."

Today, they're bringing $2 more because they're closer to the plants. That translates to $15 to $20 less for finished steers," Killam said.

Local packers claim boxed beef is growing competition, no matter how far away the plant is located.

"Major packers in the West—Kansas and Nebraska and the like—are going into boxed beef pretty heavy," said Killam. "They contract with the major meat suppliers. Local custom suppliers can't make a bid."

Killam said Illinois cattle used to be loaded for New Jersey markets to be slaughtered there. Now boxed beef has taken over that market.

Labor costs at packing plants will run $11 to $13 an hour per worker. With boxed beef, the cost is cut by more than half.

"With boxed beef, you layer steaks, paper, steaks. It takes a lot less labor to take them out, wrap and sell," Killam said.

Boxed beef isn't the only force pushing packing plants out of the state.

"Many left because of workers' compensation and unemployment compensation reasons," Killam said.

"Illini Beef in Geneseo is the largest cattle slaughter plant in Illinois. Labor demanded more than they could meet, so they said they would go out of business. In this case, labor has backed off for the time being."

Hicks is worried that the decline in the number of beef packing plants may also indicate a trend in hog packing plants.

However, Killam says pork doesn't lend itself to boxing because it's not aged like beef.

"Pork has to be slaughtered and put right into trade," Killam said. "The shelf life of pork is much less. Major packers don't market half a hog."

John Romms, meat specialist with the University of Illinois, said high interest rates are another cause of fewer plants.

Swift and Co. was dumped by its parent company, Esmark, because it couldn't provide profit margins demanded by the company.

"When they look at the return from dollar investments, there are other things more profitable," said Lew DeGraff, executive vice president of the Illinois Beef Council.

"The Swift plant at Rochelle was 18 years old. In the packing industry, that's obsolete. For a business to update, it may not be profitable for a long time."

Ironically, spiraling transportation costs could save the Illinois cattle industry. Killam estimates that semi-trailer truck costs were $1 to $1.10 per loaded mile a year ago and now are $1.80 per loaded mile.

"Everything points to transportation costs continuing to rise," he said. "If that does happen, we'll have an economic lever because Illinois is nearer to consumption. There's a possibility it may encourage some beef production to come back here."

The trend has affected larger packing plants more than smaller ones.

Although industry leaders are hoping that prohibitive transportation costs will keep Illinois' cattle industry alive, they are not sitting idle. The council was formed this spring with the goal of improving the atmosphere of animal industry in the state. Members met recently to talk about solutions to the problem.

"We discussed what we could do to encourage more animal industry in Illinois," said Hicks. "We're talking to packers that may be going out of business and we're going to talk to the (state) Department of Commerce and Community Affairs to see if they can't help."

"We're very concerned. The climate is bad."

DeGraff said he is concerned because fewer buyers will be competing for beef.

"It just isn't healthy when we see operators closing doors."

New Cancer Society unit organized here

A new unit of the American Cancer Society has been formed at an organizational board meeting at St. Elizabeth's Medical Center. The new Quad-City unit will serve the communities of Granite City, Pontoon Beach, Venice, and Madison.

Those attending were Joe Lucido, Dr. Shabbir Safdar, Dr. Felicia Koch, Dr. Prasanna Kumar, LaVerna Corbitt, Jack Grieves, Avery Schermer, Nina Millett, Metro Pearson, Linda Irwin, Mike Lombardi, Ann Pieper, Charles King, and Charlene Fohlman.

Charles King was appointed as chairman of the nominating committee, Jack Grieves as by-laws committee chairman, and Earl Dotzauer as chairman of the finance committee.

Lucido, acting unit board chairman, emphasized that the detection, cure, and eventual eradication of cancer is vitally linked to the active participation of concerned volunteers. Through their efforts public and professional education provide information as to the problem of cancer and individual responsibility in safeguarding their health.

"We are dedicated to the goal of eliminating cancer as a disease of mankind," Lucido said, "and the great strides being made in cancer research and treatment enables us to now cure one in three cancer patients, but we could be curing two out of three people if they were diagnosed early and treated promptly."

"This is truly remarkable considering 25 years ago only one in five people were being cured. Our programs are designed to inform people about the seven warning signals that may mean cancer and how they can reduce their personal risk of developing cancer."

Lucido indicated that in the past smaller, community-based units have proven most successful and are more cost efficient. This is credited to the involvement of local volunteers who are intimately aware of and concerned with the needs of their community.

The next Quad-City board meeting will be Thursday, Aug. 21, at the Ketteler Center, St. Elizabeth's Medical Center in Granite City. Anyone interested in actively serving on the board or in helping with various programs or special events are invited to attend the meeting, or may call Joe Lucido at 652-7116 for further information.

John Bennett injured in dive in pool

John D. Bennett, 31, of 2628 E. 24th St., slipped while diving into a 4-foot pool at the home of friends in West Granite City and suffered a broken neck. He is now paralyzed, according to his parents.

The accident happened at 8:15 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 2.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman (Gloria) Bennett.

Following the mishap, he could not get out of the pool and his nephew and niece, Todd, who is 8-years old, and Tracy Bennett, who is 10, and another youngster, Jay Butler, 7, kept him afloat while waiting for an ambulance and medical technicians.

Other adult friends, Julie Childers and Peggy Mitchell, assisted the children. Bennett was treated at St. Elizabeth Medical Center and transferred to Fernin Desloge Hospital in St. Louis.

He was taken on Friday to Jefferson Barracks Veterans' Medical Center, St. Louis County.

Bennett is a U.S. Navy veteran and is an employee of Reilly Tar & Chemical Co.

Registration at South next week

New students to the Granite City High School South should register next Wednesday, Thursday or Friday, Aug. 20 to 22, at the school.

Prior to those dates, students whose records need to be transferred from other school districts should sign a records release paper at the high school to expedite processing on registration day.

South High students who were enrolled in the district last year are already registered for school and need not participate, a spokesman said.

Extra milk at schools to cost 9c

The Granite City Board of Education on Tuesday night voted to charge nine cents a carton for extra milk provided in school cafeterias during the 1980-81 school year.

A price of eight cents had been set earlier this summer, but federal budget cutbacks are reducing the reimbursement to the school district.

In addition, the district will discontinue its free milk program due to a drastic reduction of the federal assistance for this purpose.

Main local recipients of free milk have been: kindergarten children from families approved for free lunches; preschool youngsters from such families; and children who are approved for free lunches but choose only to take the milk and not the entire lunch.

'Work at home' promotions increase

BY JAMES C. SCHMITT

Work-at-home promotions have been the subject of numerous inquiries received by the Better Business Bureau. The combination of unemployment and inflation has spawned a rapid increase of 'home work' schemes.

"Earn money at home. Good pay, easy work. No experience necessary. For details send 25 cents." "National company seeking people to earn $4.45 to $13.35 hourly at home. No experience needed." Advertisements such as these, making what appears to be offers of lucrative home employment, sometimes are schemes to sell inferior goods with no actual employment. Persons responding often receive in return promotion materials requesting additional fees just to buy the details. The common denominator in such "work-at-home" promotions is the requirement that the prospect buy something from the advertiser. The advertiser's primary interest lies in the sale of goods, literature, instruction or services to the prospective home worker at a profit.

Of course, not all the offers are the same. Some offer details free, and others charge a few dollars. Either way, "details" usually turn out to be solicitations for more money to obtain more details or materials.

Housewives, elderly or handicapped persons, students, people who can least afford to lose their money, are the victims of some of the advertisements.

Because of the present state of the economy, schemes of this nature are most successful in attracting consumers who are seeking additional financial sources to supplement their incomes.

The Better Business Bureau feels that promotions of this nature are not in the public interest.

Smaller county tax cuts are accepted for the November ballot

"All I am is a taxpayer. And when I see these other propositions that would take a (financial) meat-ax to our government by two people not from this county, I am concerned."

This was the comment of George Moran of Granite City, retired appellate judge, after he filed three Madison County 10 percent tax cut proposals. Monday afternoon, they are to appear on the Nov. 4 ballot, blocking inclusion of five 25 percent reductions.

The deadline for such filings is Aug. 18, and Moran moved faster than did James Tobin, president of National Taxpayers United of Illinois, and Richard Suter, an accountant for the group. Both of the latter reside in the Chicago area.

"We have forced their hand. They never would have put those propositions on the ballot if it wasn't for us," Tobin said Tuesday.

Moran still plans to file five 25 percent tax cut petitions next Monday, but the State Board of Elections has ruled that only the first three proposals can be included—and the initial three were submitted by Moran.

Moran's petitions call for lowering the maximum tax rate for each $100 assessed valuation from 10 to nine cents. The county highway fund, from 5 to 4 1/2 cents for the county bridge fund, and from 5 to 4 cents for the county matching fund.

NTI proposals call for a 25 percent reduction in the juvenile detention home fund, bridge fund and supervisor of assessments fund.

Moran's ballot questions provide for a rate reduction only for 1980; the NTI cuts would be permanent.

Among those helping collect signatures for the Moran proposals were county employees and officials, including Auditor Arthur "Pete" Fields.

Assistant State's Attorney Don Smith of Madison County said state law allows only three such proposals on the general election ballot, and the first three received will automatically go on the ballot.

Noting that the Chicagoans favor reducing the county juvenile detention home rate here by one-fourth, Moran said this would be "intolerable."

He noted that the county's general fund finances operation of the sheriff's department, the courts, the county clerk, the state's attorney, the county nursing home and the shelter care home.

"If we would reduce the general fund in any way, we would severely cripple services in the county. What we have done is propose a sensible approach to the tax problem in our county—one that is not going to cause a permanent rupture of our government," Moran commented.

Fields said earlier that the 25 percent cuts would help home owners only slightly while aiding corporations greatly.

He said that on a home assessed at $15,000, the savings would be only $10 a year, but that Shell Oil would save $53,000 and Amoco would save $22,000.

Fields estimated that the county would lose $1 million in property tax revenue under the NTI plan or $1.5 million under the alternative proposals filed by Moran. He praised the latter as "our own approach to responsible tax policy."

Meanwhile, Fields' assistant, Fred Bathon, has written to the Exempt Organizations branch of the U. S. Internal Revenue Service asking for an investigation of NTI activities.

He asserts that the political nature of the NTI and caustic comments by its leaders are not permitted under IRS tax exempt rules.

Tobin defends his categorizing of public officials as "tax thieves," asserting that when he makes such comments he is speaking for the Angry Taxpayers Action Committee, a political action committee registered with the State Board of Elections.

Tobin says the ATAC produces campaign literature and endorses candidates, while the NTI merely prints educational materials. He concedes that he does not always differentiate between the two groups when he is speaking publicly.

Moran's ballot questions provide for a rate reduction only for 1980; the NTI cuts would be permanent.

Among those helping collect signatures for the Moran proposals were county employees and officials, including Auditor Arthur "Pete" Fields.

Assistant State's Attorney Don Smith of Madison County said state law allows only three such proposals on the general election ballot, and the first three received will automatically go on the ballot.

Outlook is good for state lottery

By JOAN MURARO

SPRINGFIELD — "Things have never looked better" for the Illinois state lottery, says state lottery Director Richard Carlson. The reason, he says, is the new daily game, added to the stable of lottery entries in February.

Through the numbers of agents selling lottery tickets around the state has dropped "slightly" (from 4,000 last year to about 3,900 now), Carlson said there is a waiting list of people wishing to become agents for the daily game, and said he was at a loss to understand reports by some agents in northeastern Illinois that "the lottery was in trouble" based on their sales.

Carlson told Copley News Service he is convinced "fiscal '79 will be the bottom of the decline (in sales) and revenue" and said he is convinced the current fiscal year is going to be a real winner and next year will be even better.

"In terms of dollars, the lottery has always been profitable," he said, adding that traditionally, new weekly and instant games attract heavy buying when they are first introduced and then gradually go downhill in sales until the games are replaced, after the initial stock of tickets is sold.

"Usually, sales run $1.2 million to $1.3 million a week when a game is introduced," he said, with sales dropping to about $700,000 by the end of that game's life.

Carlson denied that the current recession and high unemployment rates have had any impact on lottery ticket sales.

"This is the same money people spend on magazines, on cigarettes and beer and going to the movies," he said. "We always see a seasonal drop in the summer, when people are on vacation and their patterns change, and around the holidays when there are other demands for these dollars."

The new daily game, he said, does not appear to have impacted much on the other current games — two weekly games and one instant game — since the lottery game seems to appeal to a specific segment of the buying market.

"The instant game has a grand prize of $1 million," he said, "and some people play for that."

The daily game, he said, is aimed at a different market — people who want to pick their own ticket numbers, and want a chance at a lot of smaller prizes, with the opportunity to know the same day if they have won anything.

A random checking of a few agents in Springfield generally supported Carlson's position on the current status of the lottery.

One agent in a popular supermarket at the west side of town said his sales had been declining gradually since the store first started selling lottery tickets, when the state lottery began in 1974.

He said his firm has no desire to handle the daily game ("From what I hear, it's a real nuisance and takes up too much time"), but is not considering dropping sales of the weekly and instant tickets he now handles, though he estimated sales had dropped by 40 percent since the lottery began.

"It's a convenience we provide for the customers," he said. "Two west-side drugstores that they dropped out as lottery ticket agents some time ago, but at downtown branch of one said there are at the same level now they were about a year ago, adding that store and its sister in the western residential area are waiting for installation of terminals to begin sales of the daily game. To do so, they must also sell all other lottery game tickets."

A chain supermarket located in the northeast district reported sales steady for the last year, as well. That store also sells weekly and instant games, but does not sell the daily game. A paraphrase of Carlson, the store manager there said "buying lottery tickets is like buying booze or cigarettes — people will find the money if they want to."

At one of the city's larger package liquor stores, the manager said sales had soared since he added the daily game recently, and said that sales of the other games for some reason had also gone up, since the daily game was added.

As of early June, Carlson said, there were $40 daily game terminals in use in the state, with new ones being added at the rate of about 10 a week, depending on speed in getting connections on telephone lines. The state has a three-year contract with Control Data to supply terminals, he said, with long-range plans calling for nearly 2,000 daily terminals in place and on-line by the end of that three-year period.

In the period before the daily game was adopted, Carlson said, sales were about $1 million weekly. Since the daily game started, that figure has risen to about $3.5 million weekly, he said, with a prize payout rate of about 52 percent.

Already, Carlson said, sales in the first 10 months of the current fiscal year have exceeded the totals for the full last fiscal year. He predicts that the lottery will end the month with $98 million in sales, which should generate $34 million to $36 million in profit to the state.

Next year, he recently told a Capitol press conference, could well produce $173 million in ticket sales.

Though he denies the rest of the current fiscal year, Carlson said the lottery officials "are always looking at all aspects of the game, but we're not looking at phasing out anything but the daily."

He said, however, it was "possible" the state could "go back to one weekly and one instant game."

Though comparative figures for the previous year were not available, Carlson provided figures on the current number of agents, and the volume of sales. In the six northeastern Illinois counties which ring Chicago.

These show Du Page County leading the field with 184 agents, of whom 12 are agents for the daily game, with $2,489,389 in sales between last July 1 and April 30 of this year. Through May 30, his figures show, daily sales were $2,489,389 in sales between last July 1 and April 30 of this year. Through May 30, his figures show, daily sales were $2,489,389 in sales between last July 1 and April 30 of this year.

Will County was second in numbers of agents — 107, including nine daily game agents — but with sales of $1,196,050 from last July 1 to April 30. Will County trailed Kane County in sales. Kane, with 102 agents including seven for the daily game, sold more than $1,434,130 in lottery tickets in the period, with $410,424 of that amount in daily game sales. Will County's daily game sales totaled $270,405.

McHenry County, with 61 agents including two daily game sellers, took in $710,594 in the fiscal period through last April 30, with $6,094 coming from daily game sales.

Kankakee County, with four daily lottery vendors, sold $421,541 in tickets during the period, $7,178 of it in daily game sales.

State surviving — so far

By KEN WATSON

SPRINGFIELD — How is Illinois faring in the current recession in comparison with other states?

The common denominator in such "work-at-home" promotions is the requirement that the prospect buy something from the advertiser.

The advertiser's primary interest lies in the sale of goods, literature, instruction or services to the prospective home worker at a profit.

Illinois clearly is not as well off as the so-called Sunbelt states such as Florida, Arizona and California. The where recession is something you read about in the newspapers. But neither are things as bad here as they are in the northeastern industrial states like Massachusetts where recession has worsened a long-term economic decline.

In comparison with other states in the Great Lakes region, Illinois also shapes up fairly well. The economic situation here, for instance, is far better than it is in Michigan, a state most similar to Illinois in size, population and economic diversification.

The automobile collapse has brought depression conditions to Michigan with Detroit suffering unemployment of close to 20 percent.

But Illinois certainly cannot be complacent about its own unemployment. In June the rate climbed to 8.6 percent, the highest since the Great Depression. The percentage translates into some 468,000 workers out of a job. The state Labor Department has warned that unemployment could climb to 9.7 percent by year's end.

It is alleged they attempted to cash a $50 check on the account of Elsie Young, also of 1620 Sycamore Ave., at the bank's minibank and the teller noticed that the signature did not appear to match.

Bank officials held the two and called police, who arrested them after calling Mrs. Young and finding out that some of her checks had been stolen.

She asked police officers to lock his car for him and when an officer was locking the car, he alleged finding the signature of Mrs. Young's stolen checks, made out for $35, on the console between the front seats of the car.

Mrs. Ely experienced health problems in jail and was taken to St. Elizabeth Medical Center, where she was admitted. Ely appeared, before a judge who set his bond at $300 and he was taken to the Madison County Jail in Edwardsville in lieu of bond.

SHAHEEN TO DISCUSS NEWS MEDIA IMPACT

Jack G. Shaheen, SIUE professor of mass communications, will be a featured guest on KMOX Radio's "At Your Service" Sunday, Aug. 17, from 11 a.m. until midnight. He will discuss the influence of news media in contemporary society.

A member of the SIUE faculty since 1969, Shaheen spent a year at the American University in Beirut, Lebanon, during the mid-'70s studying television systems in selected Middle East countries. He was also an invited speaker at the International Studies Association annual conference in 1978.

ONK'S DRIVE-IN LIQUOR IT'S QUICKER!

views an average salary of $16,145.

More good economic news for Illinois was included in an analysis by the Conference Board, a highly respected national economic group. It ranked Illinois fifth among the states in per capita income behind Alaska, Nevada, California and Connecticut.

Per capita income for the Great Lakes region that includes Illinois was placed by the board at a relatively high $3,300 a year.

Illinois, like other major northern industrial states, has a serious problem in welfare. Almost 1 million persons statewide receive public aid of some type and almost $3 billion of the total Illinois $14.5 billion budget goes for that purpose.

Gov. James R. Thompson's budget people are keeping a close watch on the public aid rolls. Any substantial increase over the next 12 months could push Illinois to the brink of financial crisis. The state entered the new fiscal year on July 1 with a general fund balance of close to $400 million. During legislative debate with Democrats, Thompson and his budget administrators insisted that the $400 million balance must be retained as a cushion against deepening recession.

Their caution appears justified. Most economists predict that the recession will "bottom out" around the first of the year. But most also say that unemployment will remain high — at about 8.5 percent or more — throughout most of 1981. This would mean a severe drain on the Illinois public aid budget.

Concern about the welfare load also prompted the Thompson forces to insist on a continued 5 percent-a-year limit on cost-of-living raises for public aid recipients. Democrats had pushed for an increase about double that, citing the soaring rate of inflation.

The 5 percent raise will mean an increase of about $18 a month for a welfare family of four, bringing its total monthly income to $368. For comparison purposes, a similar family in Texas receives $140 a month, high pay for a 300,000 persons on its welfare rolls.

2 arrested at bank

Gary W. Ely, 30, and Tammie L. Ely, 20, both of 1620 Sycamore Ave., were arrested at First Granite City National Bank at 9:55 a.m. Tuesday and were charged with attempted theft.

It is alleged they attempted to cash a $50 check on the account of Elsie Young, also of 1620 Sycamore Ave., at the bank's minibank and the teller noticed that the signature did not appear to match.

Bank officials held the two and called police, who arrested them after calling Mrs. Young and finding out that some of her checks had been stolen.

Higher state scholarships

Governor James R. Thompson approved legislation Wednesday to increase the maximum monetary award for recipients of Illinois state scholarships.

It increases the maximum award for full-time students in 1980-81 to $3,900 from $1,800, and to $950 from $900 for part-time students.

In 1980-81, the scholarship program is expected to award grants to 84,000 students. Of the 64,000, about 37,500 are expected to be students attending private institutions.

The measure is part of a record $85,000,000 program for the Illinois State Scholarship Commission in this fiscal year.

"The increased maximum award allows Illinois students to maintain some financial flexibility in choosing a college or university. This will directly benefit undergraduate students attending private colleges and universities," the governor said.

Judge Moran disqualifies himself from custody case

Madison County Associate Judge George Moran Jr. disqualifies himself Monday from hearing a case in Granite City to determine the custody of two young boys who were found abandoned at a church in Topeka, Kan., in June.

Dennis Best of Edwardsville lost custody of his two sons in a 1979 divorce case, but saw their photographs in a newspaper after they were abandoned and flew to Topeka to try and regain custody of them.

A Kansas judge gave Best temporary custody of the children and yielded jurisdiction in the case to the Illinois courts.

Associate Judge George Filcoff disqualifies himself from hearing the case Aug. 4 and Judge Moran's action Monday was the second voluntary disqualification of a judge.

Although no reason for the disqualifications was given, it may be related to the intervention of Betty J. Winter of Hawaii, grandmother of the young boys, into the case. Mrs. Winter was a court reporter for many years in Madison County and had served as reporter for most of the district's judges. She also was married to the late attorney Joseph DeLaurenti.

Judge Moran continued the temporary order giving

Best custody of the children before he disqualifies himself from hearing it. He also ordered that none of the parties or attorneys in the case release any information to the news media, on a request from Mrs. Winter. He did not act on Mrs. Winter's motions to close the hearing to the press and to close the court file to the media and the public. Those motions still are pending.

Associate Judge Philip J. Rarick, who is to reassess the case to another judge, said he will contact Chief Judge Horace Calvo to determine whether a judge from outside of the Third Judicial Circuit should be asked to hear the case.

First school opens on Friday, Aug. 22

Students registered to attend Madison public schools will report for the first half-day session on Friday, Aug. 22, with the initial full-day session to begin on Monday, Aug. 25.

Teachers institute will be conducted on Thursday, Aug. 21, for Madison teachers.

Both Venice and Granite City public schools will begin the first half-day of classes on Tuesday, Aug. 26, and all day sessions starting on Wednesday, Aug. 27.

Teachers in both districts will attend separate workshops on Monday, Aug. 25.

The parochial school in the Quad-City area have varied school openings.

Sacred Heart-St. Joseph Schools will have a mass of the Holy Scriptures, open house and tour of the classrooms beginning at 7 p.m. on Monday, Aug. 25, and on Tuesday, Aug. 26, from 8:30 a.m. to 10 a.m. an orientation day for parents and students will be held at Sacred Heart.

Don Patrick earns degree

Donald D. Patrick, 3819 Pontoon Road, has earned his bachelor of science degree from the University of Missouri-St. Louis at recent commencement exercises.

Patrick's degree is in administration of justice with emphasis on treatment of offenders. He was an honor student his senior year with a 3.2 grade average on a four-point scale.

He also holds an associate degree in criminal justice from Belleville Area College and plans to begin working on a master's degree in counselor education, either at UMSL or at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

Patrick was director and counselor of the Coordinated Youth Service office in Pontoon Beach until resigning in June, 1979, under fire by the Pontoon Beach Village Board.

The board requested that Patrick be removed from the office, in the village hall, after Patrick ran unsuccessfully for the office of village board president, opposing the current president, Paul Bennett.

Patrick is the Illinois Lions Deputy District Governor for this area and is secretary-treasurer of the Pontoon Beach Lions Club. He also serves on the crime prevention committee of the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce and on the Citizens' Advisory Council for the Granite City School District.

He is a U.S. Army veteran, having received the U.S. Bronze Star in May of 1971. He served two years in Vietnam while in the Army.

Drug charge is dismissed

Associate Judge John W. Day has dismissed a charge of delivery of a controlled substance against Casey B. Mulligan, 20, of Holiday Mobile Home Park, on a motion by the state's attorney's office.

Mulligan was among five persons arrested in a series of drug arrests conducted by the Metropolitan Enforcement Group of Southern Illinois (MEGS) in April.

Immunizations, health exams for students

Pupils of the schools will report for half-day session on Wednesday, Aug. 27, and the remainder of the week. Their first full day will be on Tuesday, Sept. 2.

St. Elizabeth School and St. Margaret Mary School will both open for half-day classes starting Tuesday, Aug. 26, and continue for the remainder of the week on a part-time basis. They also will begin full-day classes on Tuesday, Sept. 2.

Teachers at St. Elizabeth School are to attend in-service days on Aug. 22 and Aug. 25.

St. Mary-St. Mark Schools, for Venice and Madison parochial students, will begin the new school year with half-day classes on both Monday and Tuesday, Aug. 25 and 26, with full day classes scheduled to begin Wednesday, Aug. 27.

Assumption High School will open the school's 1980-81 term with the feast of Our Lady of the Assumption on Friday, Aug. 15. An orientation meeting for new faculty will begin at 3 p.m. The liturgy will be celebrated at 5 p.m. for all faculty and staff followed by the traditional cook-out and lawn party.

Students are to report for purchase of books on Monday, Aug. 18, seniors and juniors; Tuesday, Aug. 19, sophomores; Wednesday, Aug. 20, freshmen. Book sales are from 9 a.m. until 12 noon and a special orientation session is also planned for freshmen on Wednesday.

All students are to report for opening day of school on Monday, Aug. 25, at 9 a.m. From Tuesday, Aug. 26, to Friday, Aug. 29, students will meet according to their regular class schedule from 8:30 a.m. until 11:45 a.m. The first full day of classes will be on Tuesday, Sept. 2. Registration is now being taken for the 1980-81 school year at Metro East Lutheran High School, 1327 Vaughn Road, Wood River.

Freshman, sophomore, junior and senior classes will be held in the fall at the new facility on Carter Road, Edwardsville.

Interested parents can call Dr. William F. Heinicke, principal, at the school office, 259-7285 in Wood River for further information.

Classrooms throughout the state soon will begin to fill for another school year, and officials are pointing out that it is time to see that all Illinois school children are fully immunized against certain childhood diseases and given proper health examinations.

State law requires that all children entering Illinois schools, public and non-public, be immunized against polio, diphtheria, tetanus, pertussis (whooping cough), measles and rubella. The law also calls for physical examinations for children entering school for the first time, and those beginning the fifth and ninth grades.

Children failing to meet the immunization and physical examination requirements may be excluded from attending school.

Beginning this fall, public school districts reporting less than 80 percent of their students having met the immunization and physical examination standards as of Oct. 15 will have ten percent of each state aid payment withheld until the compliance level is reached.

By Oct. 15, 1981, the compliance level for schools will be permanently set at 90 percent.

According to the Illinois Department of Public Health, approximately 90 percent of the children in Illinois need to be immunized in each of the disease categories in order to prevent epidemics of any of the diseases.

Terry A. Branson, 18, Centerville, was charged Monday with burglary and two misdemeanor charges of theft in connection with a weekend incident in the Granite City Steel parking lot at 16th Street and Madison Avenue.

Granite City Steel security guards notified Granite City police at 6:45 a.m. Saturday that they had apprehended Branson in the lot after he allegedly removed a CB radio and antenna from the auto of Thomas Johnson, Collinsville, parked in the lot.

A knife, believed used to gain entry to the auto, was found on the ground. The guards alleged they saw Branson carry the CB and antenna to an auto and then put them in the trunk. Four tires and wheels also were located in the auto, the guards said.

Later it was discovered that the rear wheels and tires had been removed from the cars of Ray Allen and Tim Briggs, both steel company employees. Briggs said a window of his car also had been broken and $10 in cash and four tape recordings had been taken.

Ownership of the auto into which Branson had allegedly placed the items is being investigated, officers said.

Placement Counselor

A summary of placement and career programs and activities in 1979-80 in Granite City schools shows total applications of 435, with 925 contacts and 340 interviews.

In-school applications totaled 239 in the fall of 1979, with 577 contacts and 196 interviews.

In the spring of 1980, the figures were 141, 250 and 100.

Post-graduates continue to contact the office for part-time, temporary and full-time employment opportunities.

There have been more applications from those who graduated two years ago or more, due perhaps to the fact that the placement service has now been in operation for five years, and old friends remember.

Post-graduate applications for both semesters totaled 55, with 98 contacts and 44 interviews.

The placement office continues to make three or four referrals for most job opportunities.

At the present time, we send return postal cards with each applicant, but they are not consistently returned; therefore, it is difficult to estimate the placement rate.

We have had several instances of employers who, after hiring our students, contact the office for additional referrals.

We have also been informed that our graduates have been given very responsible positions after a relatively short training period.

One active and well-paying employer recently decided to contact our placement office first when an entry-level job opportunity becomes available. This decision is directly related to the quality of our graduates.

Some examples of recent quality placement and the level of earnings indicate approximately $12,000 per year at an area lumber yard, up to $19,000 per year at McDonnell-Douglas (three placements) and $750 to $800 per month for business majors.

All these students were vocational education majors.

In addition to direct placement activities, the placement counselor has had the opportunity to attend class meetings, classrooms, and special group meetings to be in demand in the metropolitan area.

Our skilled graduates develop proficiency in using the principles and methods in day-to-day situations.

Two remaining seminars will be offered in design, with problem employees Sept. 9-10, and inventory investment, Sept. 16-18.

The tax-deductible fees, including luncheons and meeting materials, are $105 to $290, payable to SIUE. All seminars meet between 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. in Classroom Building III, Room 3335.

Raymond Woods, 692-2658, said telephone registration will be accepted if confirmed in writing.

Mrs. Kopsky, coordinator.

May 9—All vocational education majors at South High in the junior and senior years attended a two-hour training session on "job seeking skills."

May 14—All vocational education majors at North High in the junior and senior years attended "job seeking skills."

During the past year, at least 22 industrial vocational education classes were given career and vocational placement information.

Also during the year, at least 15 vocational business education classes were given career and vocational placement information.

The Computerized Vocational Information System, CVIS, continues to be offered to our students.

This year, all juniors in American History II classes were the target group.

The Guidance Department expects to provide this service to all consumer home management students in the 1980-81 school year.

This past year, the placement counselor conducted 68 CVIS sessions with classroom groups.

On two occasions, one each semester, the unit clerk class from South High was taken to St. Elizabeth Medical Center for orientation information.

The "Massey tapes" were shown three times to district personnel, with equipment should be from Belleville Area College, Lewis and Clark Community College and the Granite City Steel Training Department.

Over 30 visits were made to new employers during the year. Some of the organizations and employers contacted during the year included:

Bricklayers Union, Famous Barr Co., Federal Reserve Bank, Olin Corporation, Civil Service, Stix, Baer & Fuller, U.S. Armed Forces, Emerson Electric, A.G. Edwards & Son, Job Service, Slay Industries, G.C. Trust & Savings Bank, McDonnell-Douglas, Mercantile Bank, First G.C. National Bank, Basler Electric, Nestle Company, St. Elizabeth Medical Center, Boatmen's Bank, Southwestern Bell, Carpenters District Council, Balston Purina and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

Expand campus housing capacity

A $5 million building and rehabilitation project will increase Washington University's on-campus student housing capacity by 150 units by this fall. Another 132 units will be available by the fall of 1981.

The project includes modernization and renovation of the interiors of three existing faculty apartment buildings on Millbrook Boulevard and the addition of a fourth building.

The fourth building at 6926 Millbrook has four floors, including a basement. The office of off-campus housing, directed by Mable Thomas, is located in the basement.

The trend in student housing is more and more toward on-campus housing," said Joe Evans, associate vice chancellor for business affairs. "In order to maintain the attractiveness of the university to incoming students, we are responding to this demand."

Evans also cited a decrease in rental units close to the university because of condominium conversion, increased transportation costs, and security.

The new complex design can be converted into smaller apartments which could be rented to the public. The on-campus housing trend reverse. In anticipation of this possibility, university officials have rejected the idea of constructing new housing in the South-40 residence area at Wydown and Big Bend Boulevards. There are 14 dormitories in the South-40 area, housing about 2,200 students.

Creative problem

A creative problem solving seminar will be held Aug. 28-29 by the Center for Management Studies at SIUE. The course is the sixth in a series of professional management development seminars offered this summer.

James F. Miller Jr., Center director, said the course will describe creative traits and show how they can be developed to produce ideas. Participants will be provided with tools for problem solving and then will be encouraged to develop proficiency in using the principles and methods in day-to-day situations.

Two remaining seminars will be offered in design, with problem employees Sept. 9-10, and inventory investment, Sept. 16-18.

The tax-deductible fees, including luncheons and meeting materials, are $105 to $290, payable to SIUE. All seminars meet between 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. in Classroom Building III, Room 3335.

You know Joe; Former state rep enjoys coaching role

By TOM SCHOCKER
For the Press-Record
GRANITE CITY — What can you say about a man who works in two worlds? What can you say about a man that has touched the lives of nearly everybody he has met? That's Joe Lucco.

If you don't know who Joe Lucco is, maybe after reading his long list of accomplishments, you will get some idea about the man and his career. The most outstanding fact about Lucco is that he has lived a life in two worlds which oddly enough seem to be a natural combination, athletics and politics. However, his contributions are so numerous that the best way to describe this man and his achievements is from the beginning.

The Edwardsville High School Athletic Department will probably always remember the day Joe Lucco came on the scene back in 1944. Attracted to the coaching profession, he headed the baseball team. In his years as head coach, he guided the Tigers to five appearances in the state tournament. "The most discouraging aspect of our trips to the state tournament," said Lucco, "is that we never won the title." Nevertheless, Lucco started a winning tradition that has held up through the years. In fact, his success was so complete, he produced a number of players that have made it to the minor league camps and even to professional level.

Moving to bigger and better things, Lucco left the high school ranks in 1958, to become a scout for the St. Louis Cardinals. In his 10 seasons with the Red Birds, he had the opportunity to help sign two promising young players, Ron Willis and Chuck Taylor. The latter became a pitcher for the Cardinals, in addition to the Montreal Expos and New York Mets. Lucco also managed the Johnson City farm team in Tennessee of the Appalachian League. "That was a Class D ball team then," said Lucco. "Now it is Class A."

If that wasn't enough, he even found time to travel around the United States, running try-out camps for young ball players. The most notable find for Lucco in these camps was that of Tim McCarver and Ron Sadeki, who went on to become big league stars for St. Louis.

However, Lucco's desire for coaching finally caught up with him once again, as he came back to take over the Edwardsville American Legion team in 1969. As the managerial duties returned, so did the success. That summer his squad climbed to second in the state tournament. Their final defeat came against the eventual national champions, Northbrook.

The following year, 1970, marked Lucco's debut in the Inter-City League as chief of Glen Carbon. And why should this position be any different from the rest? He took his club to the championship game known as the Governor's Cup. But that forever unattainable title eluded him once more as Glen Carbon placed second. For the time being, the active and successful coach

Cougars begin title defense in Nike meet

By AL BARNES
For the Press-Record
EDWARDSVILLE — There has been some very great soccer played at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville in the past, the present, and for sure, the future.

This Friday, the Cougar kickers of veteran SIUE coach, Bob Gueller, will make their 1980 season debut in one game of a twinbill featuring two elevens from great Britain and the Rivermen of the University of Missouri, St. Louis.

The two games are the first of a six-game round robin tournament continuing next week with a pair of games on Wednesday, Aug. 20 and a duo of contests Saturday, Aug. 23.

All six games are part of the Nike-SIUE Edwardsville International Invitation soccer tournament hosted by the Cougars.

The playing surface at Cougar Field — lush, thick and beautiful grass — is in near perfect shape for the Nike Tournament. Helping get the pitch ready were the six hard-fought games in last week's International Youth Soccer Coca Cola Cup tournament played over three nights at Cougar Field, and advancing Honduras and Bermuda to the quarterfinal and semi-final rounds at John F. Kennedy Stadium in Washington, D.C. this week.

The UMSL Rivermen of Coach Don Dallas will get Friday night's schedule rolling when they tangle with the Universities Athletic Union of Britain eleven at 6 p.m.

AT 8 p.m., the defending NCAA Division I (large schools) champion SIUE Cougars will take on the visiting British Colleges eleven.

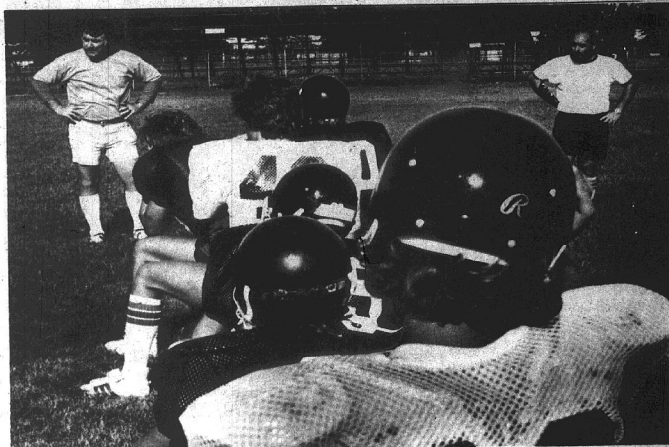

Then, next Wednesday, Aug. 20, UMSL will meet British Colleges Select at 6 p.m., while NAIA powerhouse Quincy College will do battle with the Universities Athletic Union of Britain eleven at 8 p.m.

The five participating teams in the Nike Tourney will be honored in a kickoff banquet Thursday night, Aug. 14, at SIUE's Meridian Ballroom in the University Center. The public is invited to attend. Tickets may be purchased ($7) by calling (618) 692-2023. Dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m.

Patti Martin loves to get in the swim

By PETE HAVES
Sports Editor
of the Press-Record
GRANITE CITY — The swimmers lined up on the starting blocks. The 15, 16 and 17 year old girls shook their arms to get loose. They nervously rocked back and forth on their bare feet. They bent their knees. Except one. And she was the reason they were nervous.

Patti Martin. Only 10 years old. Once the race started, she whipped them.

Patti, daughter of Roger and Connie Martin of Granite City, isn't a child prodigy. But she's not bad, either. A year-round swimmer, she qualified for the Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) Junior National Championships this weekend in Lincoln, Neb. She qualified in the 50 meter butterfly, the 200 meter individual medley and probably the 100 meter butterfly.

She looks like a swimmer. Bleached hair and dark skin. The diminutive young swimmer has a chance to become a national caliber swimmer before becoming a teenager.

Talking about herself isn't easy for Patti. "Butterfly's my best event," she said. "I guess because it's my fastest."

Her family has to make sacrifices for Patti's swimming. "It's not too bad, though," said her mother. "We have meals at odd times, when we have them. We have to get up at odd times sometimes too."

This week is one of those times. Patti has practiced at 6:30 each morning in preparation for the meet in Nebraska. "I don't mind, though," Patti said with a pizyish smile.

Patti has been swimming competitively for only a little over two years. "Since I was eight," she said. "But I learned when I was three."

"Patti sat in front of the TV and watched Mark the swimmers in the 1972 Olympics when she was just a baby," said Mrs. Martin. "She loved it. I think that's how she got interested."

This year has been a good one for Patti. "The best ever," she said. In addition to swimming for the Tri Cities Area YMCA team, she is a top-notch swimmer for Paddlers Swim and Diving Club, which just finished an

Logsdon's 'dream' has become a reality

By MARGARET ADES
The racers are in place at the starting gate, their helmets fastened as they nervously check their bikes for last minute faults.
In a flash the gate pops open and 10 bicycle racers hit the dirt track, leaving behind only tread marks and a dust cloud.
Spectators crowd around the edges of the track to see the racers as flashing metal and bright steel circle the track in the midday sun.

So many racers pass through the starting gate at the BMX course in Collinsville every Saturday that the sport has become a major one in the area, according to local founder Bob Logsdon.
"It's even a family thing now," said a relaxed Logsdon, sporting blue jeans, a cowboy hat and a T-shirt with "Panda" splashed across the back. "It lets everyone get involved."

The BMX track is Logsdon's "baby." He began the course five years ago, mainly for kids of all ages to have a place to ride.
"Kids were out on the streets and on dangerous trails riding their bikes. They were getting hurt, and I decided I wanted a bicycle park where kids would be safe," Logsdon said. He capitalized on the possibility of renting a plot of land, now owned by the city as a park, and converting it into a track.

"If we could come out here (Johnson Hill Road) we could race (as well as ride) bikes. So I rented a bulldozer and did it," Logsdon said.
Now the site has a good-sized dirt track with a concession stand platform on which the announcer stands. Logsdon rents the land from the city for $1 a year. "The city's been real good about it," he said.

Logsdon hosts one national riding event a year at his track. In June of this year, more than 750 riders participated in this year's national event, which will be televised nationally in October.
Logsdon clearly enjoys running the races and has done so for five years. As he pushed his cowboy hat back on his head he said, "The kids we have race here are great. There're few trouble makers. The kids really help each other out."
Jackie Sweet, secretary of the not-for-profit Collinsville Bicycle Club, agreed with Logsdon that the kids are cooperative.
"If one kid wrecks his bike, another one will give him his bike to ride," she said.

Logsdon was quick to comment on the fact that so many people can participate in bike racing.

"If you've got a baseball team, only nine people could play. If you have a football team only so many people could play. Out here everyone has the same fair chance. Everyone can ride," Logsdon said, mopping his brow, his hair damp under his hat from the heat.

Sweet added there has never been a problem of bike stealing at the track in Collinsville like there has been at other area tracks. "We've never had one bike swiped," said Sweet, surprised because of the expense of the bikes.

The kinds of bikes the racers use now

Many GC riders go to Collinsville BMX track are much more expensive than types used years ago, said Sweet. "There are no more $50 bikes now. They're $200 or more," she said.

But expense doesn't seem to keep anyone from the competition, which has several age categories for racing. The 2-year-old to 5-year-old category is called "Big Wheels." Then, beginning with the 6-year-olds, there is a separate age category for each age up to 16.

There are also beginners' classes for those needing an introduction to racing. As soon as a beginner wins a trophy in this class, he is required to advance to the novice class. After that, he can join the regular races.

One of the newest categories is one called "Senior Cruisers" in which the over-30 set can race. Logsdon, a charter member, claimed a first place trophy in that class on Saturday.

Logsdon doesn't race much anymore. In the old days, there were Mother's Day and Father's Day races. I raced in the Father's Day one," said Logsdon. Logsdon's son, Bobby, also races. Racing runs in the family.

The other recent addition to the racing categories is the relay race. No other BMX has had this category, which pegs four-man teams against each other. Teams consist of one 13-year-old, 14-year-old, 15-year-old and 16-year-old. Each man does one lap of the track for a total race of four laps, as compared to the regular, standard race of one lap.

The bikes used in the races have to meet certain specifications and have to pass inspection. The standard required wheel size is 20 inches, 26-inch wheels are reserved for the "cruiser" classes. Along with wheel size regulations, the bikes must have no sharp edges (if there are some, they must be padded over), and specified brakes and hand gears.

"A lot of kids fix up an old bike and bring it out here to use," said Logsdon. And as most of the riders are proud of their bikes, they take good care of them.

The Collinsville BMX is now on the map nationally, said Logsdon. The growing popularity of bike racing in the Metro-East area has set Logsdon to consider buying lights for night racing. But that move is just in the planning stage until sufficient funds can be found.

The races are all run by volunteer help from the area and from Missouri, where half of the racers are from. Several tracks in Missouri have Illinois racers, so Missouri racers reciprocate. "The hot weather has been rough on us this year," said Logsdon. "I'm more worried about the workers (in the heat) than I am about the kids."

The weather has also prevented large numbers of racers from appearing at the track. The total number of racers is less than 100 each week, down considerably due to the heat.

It was easy to see how the stifling heat was making everyone on the track almost limp. There is little shade making for lengthy concession stand lines.

THERE THEY GO. Hundreds of youths like these, including many from Granite City, take part each week in the Bicycle Moto-Cross races at Collinsville's BMX Track.

Weight-lifting extravaganza is set for this Saturday

ROXANA — The annual Ozark Weightlifting Championships will be held this Saturday, Aug. 16 at Roxana High School.
According to meet director Kurt Mathes of Granite City, the power meet will be held Saturday and Sunday, beginning at 10:30 a.m. each day.

The Tri City Area YMCA team, coached by Mathes (who is also a lifter), is the favorite for the team championship. "Some of the best lifters in the country will be here for the meet," said Mathes. "There will be several national champions."

Tickets, available at the door, are priced at $3 per session, or $5 for a two-day pass.

Courts closed

GRANITE CITY — The Granite City Park District tennis courts will be closed for the balance of the summer, starting Monday, Aug. 18.

The Park District will begin work on resurfacing courts 5 and 6 also will be closed because the fencing between courts 3, 4, 5 and 6 will be removed.

Shelter five also is being replaced with a new 20 x 48 cedar wooden shelter. Therefore, no picnic can be held in that area for the remainder of the summer season.

The Park District is to receive a 50 percent federal grant in the amount of $33,413 to help complete these projects.

Park Labor Day Tourney

GRANITE CITY — The Granite City Park District will hold its annual Men's Labor Day Slow Pitch Softball Tournament starting Friday, Aug. 29 through Sept. 1.

Zantigo 4th in state

MACOMB — The Zantigo men's slow-pitch softball team from Granite City finished fourth in the state tournament Sunday in Macomb. Zantigo was one of several area teams qualifying for the state meet. Other than that eliminated along the way were Waggoner Trucking of Madison, Alton Athletic Club and Wampus Cats of Belleville. The tournament was a double-elimination affair.

Perhaps the most interesting game was Saturday in the loser's bracket pitting Zantigo against Waggoner, in a game that would send one of the remaining Southern Illinois teams home. Zantigo continued its hex over Waggoner, winning 7-3, just as it had done earlier in the district playoffs in Granite City.

Zantigo's first loss in the tournament came in the fifth game against Miller High Life of Lincoln, 18-9. That sent the Granite City team into the loser's bracket against Waggoner.

BAC needs players

BELLEVILLE — Patty Phillips, Belleville Area College tennis coach, is looking for players. "We have won the district championship for the last four years, and we won state in '78 and '79," Phillips said. "I know that there are enough excellent tennis players in our district that we can continue to win!"
Any woman interested in trying out for the BAC tennis team should contact Phillips through the athletic office (235-2700, extension 371).

be informal and everyone will have an opportunity to chat with their British cousins during the evening.

Bigham urged the public to buy season tickets for the Cougar games. "St. Louis area soccer fans will be able to buy a season ticket for 11 home games for just $22 for adults, and $11 for senior citizens and students over 18," he said.

But the highlight of the season is her qualification for the AAU Meet in Nebraska. In order to do that, Patti had to raise at least a 3A time in an event (4A is the highest). She, by virtue of her times, is now 3A in the 200 individual medley and the 50 butterfly. But since her times are fast in all her events and only one other swimmer from this area (from St. Louis) is going to the meet, she could swim in other events too.

Even at her tender age, Patti knows how to handle reporters' questions.

Earlier this summer at a meet in St. Louis, Patti outdid herself. She won four trophies and was the talk of the meet. But ask her about that meet and she won't talk about it herself. She'll talk about a little deaf girl swimmer with whom Patti and some of her friends from Granite City spoke with through sign language.

"That was the best part," she said.

Patti isn't the only swimmer in the family. Her sister Cathy, age 7, got into the swim this summer at Paddlers.

"She won her first medal (a third) this year," said the girls' mother. "She was pretty happy about that." Also coming up is brother David, 2½.

"He just swims on the floor and the sofa now."

Patti's father also gets into the act. "He gives us a lot of advice on relays," said Patti. "He yells at us stuff like, 'Win this one,' or 'Swim faster.'"

Another highlight of the past season was when

Patti took part in her first "open" meet, meaning all ages participated. "They go by times and I had to swim against some older girls, but from a lower class," she laughed.

"They tried to psyche me out by asking me my times. But when I told them, they got nervous."

"She blew them out of the water," said her mother, with just a hint of pride showing through.

What's her goal? "I'd like to go to the Olympics sometime," she said. "That'd be fun."

It will take a lot of work. Hundreds of swimmers start out with the Olympics as their goal, but few make it. Maybe Patti will be one of the lucky ones. But that's a few years away yet.

Edwardsville had not had a team for some 20 years," said Lucco. "I felt they needed one. I would have hated to see them die out."

He brought them back to life and picked up where he left off 10 years ago, by taking his team to the playoffs.

All that you've been told about is Lucco's baseball success. Failing to be mentioned was that his coaching talents also laid in another area of athletics—basketball. Not only did he coach Edwardsville to glory in baseball, his expertise in basketball found tremendous gains.

After several years away from baseball, Lucco returned to the coaching ranks and the Inter-City League this summer.

Lucero shifted his interest to the world of politics, where his past success held true to form. He was elected as a member to the Illinois House of Representatives in 1970. His time in office lasted two terms, which enabled him to gain a position as an aide to the House Speaker, William A. Redman. "My primary issues are energy and education," said Lucco. But these key problems couldn't overshadow his first love of athletics and baseball. "I had a chance to manage the Civics," said Lucco, "which would have been a great opportunity. But I'm in Springfield a lot and the team would have taken too much of my time. That's why Sunday ball was just right."

Mann jumps to South

By RICK WELLS and PETE HAYES

GRANITE CITY — Soccer practice started as usual for schools throughout the state yesterday. About 60 kickers were on hand to try out for Collinsville. But of the 60, there was definitely someone missing.

At the same time, the Granite City South Warriors had a new member working out with the team. In the first day the senior already showed coach Gene Baker talent that might earn him a starting position.

The player is Robbie Mann. Last year for the Kahoka he scored 20 goals and was the only Collinsville player named to the Illinois High School Soccer Coaches Association Region 7 All-Star team. Now, he'll be using that talent to help South's drive toward its fifth straight state title, in sixth overall.

Quite actually, Mann's jump to South comes as little surprise. Talks of his moving to Granite City have been around for months, even a few years. Earlier this summer, at a soccer camp in Granite City, Mann talked openly with reporters.

Although nothing was official at the time (and actually still won't be until he registers later this month), Mann was sure he was moving to Granite City. His parents own a home in Collinsville, but are renting a house in Granite this year. They are already moved in. And now Robbie is practicing with the Warriors.

Mann said his reason for wanting to move to Granite City is simple: he belongs in Granite. He said his friends are mostly from Granite and his girl friend is from Granite. He said he spends most of his time playing soccer, and when the high school season was over the last three years he'd play with Granite kickers in league soccer.

Few can deny, however, the benefits Mann will have by jumping to South. Even though Collinsville's 17-6-4 record last year was nothing to sneeze at, it still wasn't a state championship.

No one is accusing Baker of recruiting. He probably has enough talent without Mann to at least make a strong bid for its fifth straight state championship. It was Mann who was actively seeking enrollment at G.C. South.

There is one more factor. According to several sources, Mann and Collinsville coach Jim Stranz were the best of friends. Many point to Collinsville's 1-0 win over Granite City North last year that went into sudden death penalty kicks. The Kahoka scored eight consecutive penalty shots. But Stranz didn't use Mann to take a single shot.

"They did not break the letter of the rule," Stranz said of Mann's family. "But they're breaking the spirit of the rule, in my opinion."

The Pierce case, however, was different, says Stranz. Pierce was forced into his decision. It is Mann's "blatant" actions that has Stranz upset. He said he fears the free agent situation of professional sports will filter down to the high school level if moves like this are allowed by the IHSA.

Other than that, it's back to normal for Stranz. "It just opens up a position, and we've got three or four players who can fill it," he said.

"At first it hurt. You think, 'Gee, what am I going to do?' But then I realized you're always going to end up losing a kid that caliber anyway, either to graduation or because he flunks out of school," Stranz said.

"I was afraid the kids would be upset," he said. "But they're almost taking it as a crusade. It'll be a psyche factor for us. It may prove beneficial to us."

And what would happen now if everything fell through the roof and Mann was ordered back to Collinsville?

"If Mann would continue his soccer, Stranz said it would be his 'duty' as a coach to play the senior. But he also said the damage to the team after all this would be tough to overcome.

ROBBIE MANN (right), in action here last season for Collinsville, will change uniforms and play for Granite City South, four-time state champion. (File photo)

Inheritance tax deferred

Payment of state inheritance taxes by the heirs of small family-owned farms and businesses will be easier under the provisions of a bill newly approved by Governor James R. Thompson.

The legislation, Senate Bill 1487, permits the representatives of small business estates to defer state inheritance tax payments for five years, and then to pay the tax in 10 yearly installments.

Thompson approved the measure at the Illinois State Fair during County Fair Day.

"This will provide some modest tax relief for the heirs of small businesses. I believe the delayed payments of inheritance taxes will help preserve some small businesses and farms in Illinois, which might not otherwise have the cash on hand to pay the tax," the governor said.

Interest on the deferred and installment payments will be six percent a year for those who elect to use the deferral option. The law takes effect for estates of those dying after Dec. 30, 1980.

The deferral plan will cause an estimated reduction of between $10 million and $50 million in state revenues in each of the first five years of its operation, funds that will be regained when payments start.

The fiscal impact will be felt until the 1982 fiscal year, because the normal delay for settlements of estates is 10 months. The legislation had been supported in the past by former Attorney General William Scott, and currently by Attorney General Tyrone C. Fahner. Fahner urged the governor to approve the bill, and was present for its signing.

APPLICATIONS TAKEN Saturday is the deadline for submitting nominations, in writing, for persons wishing to fill vacancies on the Health Systems Agency board of directors. There are three Madison County positions open on the board. The election will be held at the fifth annual meeting Oct. 15.

Special registration centers are scheduled

If interest in voters' registration is any indication of voter participation in the Nov. 4 general election, Madison County should pile up a record tally, according to County Clerk Evelyn Bowles who said her office has been deluged with inquiries concerning the July 31 expiration of voters' certificates of registration.

Miss Bowles advised that all properly registered voters automatically will receive new cards during the month of August, but if a voter has moved or had a change of name, he should take the proper steps to become eligible.

She said those who have had a change of name must indicate the new address on the reverse side of their pink registration cards and mail it to the county clerk's office at the courthouse in Edwardsville.

Persons who have had a change of name must register before Oct. 7, the last day for registering to qualify as a voter in the general election.

As a convenience to voters in different parts of the county, Miss Bowles has announced arrangements for a series of special registration periods to be held between now and the Oct. 7 registration deadline.

Laser surgery reduces trauma

By SALLIE JO BURTON
When the word "laser" comes up in most conversations these days, it is probably attributable to the laser swords used as weapons in "Star Wars."

However, the galaxy was not the setting for the demonstration of a Caviron CO₂ surgical laser in the Edwardsville office of Dr. Robert M. Lay.

Patrick Callender and Sarah Schorff were the willing subjects as Dr. Lay demonstrated the painless, non-traumatic, hemostatic removal of several moles.

The moles removed from the back of Dr. Lay's stepson, Callender, were small. No local anesthetic was administered. A local, however, was given to remove the larger growth on Sarah Schorff's back.

As the Collinsville and Granite City physician aimed the laser on the mole, it was only seconds before the growth disappeared in a literal "puff of smoke." At the end of the procedure there is a distinct smell as the tissue disintegrates.

The name laser is an acronym derived from Light Amplification by Stimulated Emission of Radiation.

The Caviron model, installed in Dr. Lay's Edwardsville and Granite City offices, does not emit any radiation.

According to James Dods, medical sales executive for Caviron Lasers, the laser itself is a device for converting some form of "pumping" energy into a beam of light which can be used for a variety of purposes, notably surgical removal of tissue.

The laser, he continued, effectively removes tissue because the highly concentrated energy of the laser beam is totally absorbed by the water which constitutes approximately 85 percent of most living tissues. The energy is converted into heat and causes flash vaporization of the cellular water at 100 degrees centigrade.

Dr. Lay, who recently donated a Caviron to the surgical department at St. Elizabeth Medical Center in Granite City, said the laser frees him from a procedure that used up a great deal of his and the patients' time.

The surgeon said he had recently used the laser to remove 150 lesions from a man's body. No local anesthetic was necessary.

The model demonstrated by Dr. Lay, complete with several attachments and a microscope, costs right at $38,000.

The physician said the adjacent tissue remains relatively unaffected because of the pinpoint precision of the laser. This was not true with the former procedure used.

There is minimal bleeding, if any, and reduced trauma, improving post-operative comfort, rapid healing, reduced edema, less pain and minimal scarring.

Because only the laser beam contacts the tissue, destroying both bacteria and viruses, there is inherent sterility.

There is also improved visibility, because the surgeon has a direct line of sight into the operating area, and there is less risk of metastasis (transmission of disease from an original site to one or more sites elsewhere in the body) because it destroys malignant cells struck by the beam which also coagulates small blood vessels and lymphatics.

In addition to Dr. Lay's two lasers and the one he donated to St. Elizabeth, there are others at Barnes Hospital and Cardinal Glennon Hospital in St. Louis.

Dods said that to the best of his knowledge, there is only one other laser in the St. Louis area. It is used by a Belleville plastic surgeon.

Dr. Lay's wife Glenda, who until recently was his scrub nurse, has also received training on the use of the laser.

The physician received advance and intensive training in the use of the Caviron at Herbert Hospital in New Orleans. The Lays also trained at Ravenswood Hospital in Chicago.

Dr. Lay said he will use the laser primarily to remove warts, moles and birth marks. Small basal cells, malignant tumors suffered by farmers, sailors, construction workers and others in the sun a great deal, can be removed by the laser.

However, the procedure will not be used to remove other cancerous cells. They must be excised.

The cost to remove a lesion, Dr. Lay said, will run from $25 on up, depending on size, depth and location. The removal of face lesions will cost more because the surgical procedure is more tedious.

In the near future, the Lays will use each other as guinea pigs and use the laser to remove spider veins from their legs.

Some home mortgage rates will be flexible

Renegotiable rate mortgages, newly authorized in Illinois, allow lending institutions to periodically readjust interest rates during the life of a residential mortgage, when current interest rates differ from those agreed upon at the time of the original mortgage contract.

"Hopefully, renegotiable rate mortgages will keep lending institutions in the state from cutting back the supply of mortgage money when interest rates go down," Governor James R. Thompson says.

The legislation, effective immediately, makes the state law the same as federal law, which already permits lending institutions to issue renegotiable rate mortgages.

The amount that interest rates may be raised through the renegotiable mortgage provision is limited by both state and federal law to 5 percent a year and 5 percent during the life of the mortgage.

"This protects consumers," Thompson believes.

He adds, "This added mortgage option will prevent lenders from being burned during periods in which interest rates are extremely low."

"It will also mean that lenders no longer need to hedge against what they think may be higher interest rates in the future by charging consumers higher rates than current market conditions require."

2 sign complaints against each other

Julian D. King, 43, of 2529 Northbridge, and Sidney Williams, 47, of 2532 Northbridge, signed state battery complaints against each other following an alleged fight outside their homes at 8:30 p.m. Monday.

Police arrived and reported a large crowd had gathered and were watching the two men and a teenage boy fighting. Officers stopped the fight and Williams alleged that King and the teenager had jumped on him, knocked him down and beat and kicked him while he was on the ground. Williams was taken by a Granite City ambulance to St. Elizabeth Medical Center where he was admitted with bleeding from his right ear and nose and a bruise around his left eye.

Police talked to several witnesses and allowed both men to sign state battery complaints against each other. King was released on $35 cash bond and a hold on Williams was ordered at the medical center, officers said. The juvenile met with juvenile authorities and was charged with fighting.

Officers reported they had been summoned previously to the neighborhood, at 6:25 and 6:40 p.m., on reports of loud music from King's home.

At 10:30 p.m. a neighbor told police he had just witnessed three teenagers break windows in Williams' house, while the occupant was in the hospital.

The neighbor said three youths, about 15 years old, were wearing ski masks on their heads while they threw pieces of concrete through three windows in the rear of the house. Words also were written in red paint on the rear of the house and on the garage door, police discovered.

There have been no arrests in connection with the damage to Williams' home, officers added.

Crash damages house, poles

Mark Summers, 23, of 2623 North St., was charged with failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident and failure to report the accident after his car struck a guide wire to a utility pole on Nameoki Drive at Sinclair Avenue Monday, police alleged.

According to official reports, the auto struck the guide wire with enough force to crack two utility poles and one of the poles tilted, tearing the electrical service out of the home of James Taylor, 2725 Nameoki Drive.

When the electrical service was pulled out, four windows in the house were broken, police said.

After Summers' auto struck the guide wire, the car was rebounded backwards across Sinclair Avenue and into a ditch, officers said.

Summers reported the accident nearly eight hours after it occurred, police alleged.

Enrollment decreasing as new term approaches

By RAY SERRATI

SPRINGFIELD — The start of a new school year isn't far off, and a report from the State Board of Education, even though packed with statistics, shows that only eight counties in the last eight years have shown increases in elementary and secondary enrollment figures.

The report covers public school enrollment from the fall of 1971 to the fall of 1979. The statistics cover kindergarten through the 12th level.

Johnson County in southern Illinois was the top with a 4 percent change upward in enrollment of 12.1 percent in the period covered by the report.

The second county was Kendall County, which started the 1971 school year with 7,715 students and the fall enrollment of 1979 was 8,348 for a percentage change of 8.2 percent. Third was Mason County with 4,383 in the fall of 1971 and 4,657 in the fall of 1979.

Will County was ranked fourth and showed a hefty hike in enrollment figures. There were 61,669 students registered for the fall of 1971 and 64,792 for the fall of 1979, giving the county a percentage increase of 5.0 percent. McHenry County started the 1971 school year with 27,269 students and had 28,388 for the start of the school year in 1979. Menard County was next with a slight increase. It started the 1971 school year with 2,750 students and it had 2,796 students to start the 1979 school year. Perry County in southern Illinois rounded out the top eight, with only a slight upward change. The remainder of the counties showed downward trends.

For instance in the county rankings, Kane County was listed as 13th. The county showed 72,547 students in public schools at the start of the 1971 school term in the fall, and this compares with 70,597 students in the fall of 1979. This is a downward change of about 2.7 percent.

Grundy County also showed a fast drop in the same time period. The county started the fall school year of 1971 with 7,559 students and in the fall of 1979 it was 7,281. This is a 3.7 percent change.

DuPage County showed a 5.5 percent decrease over the eight-year period. The county started the fall school year of 1971 with 128,175 students and in the fall of 1979 the total was 121,113. Kankakee County went from 22,208 in the fall of 1971 to 20,026 last fall.

Two central Illinois counties showing drops were Sangamon and Morgan. In Morgan County the fall 1971 enrollment was listed at 7,513 and in the fall of 1979 it was 6,378. Sangamon County had 33,382 students in the fall of 1971 according to the report and 27,487 students in the fall of 1979. Sangamon was slightly ahead of Cook County which had 1,049,313 in the fall of 1971, and 854,845 for the fall of 1979. So on a percentage change Sangamon stayed ahead of Cook, but not on the total number of students.

LaSalle County started the fall of 1971 with 24,784 students and 19,334 students in the fall of 1979. In the fall of 1971, Livingston County had 6,130 students in the fall of 1971 and 4,922 students in the fall of 1979.

The northeastern counties were matched with the central Illinois counties in an effort to see what was developing with school enrollments for the public schools in two areas of the state that have a mixture of farming, industry and office-type of employment, along with government employment.

Overall the report said enrollment for the period dropped 348,275 students. The projections are that the drop in the public schools will continue for the next decade. Early projections are that an increase won't be seen possibly until the 1990-91 school year.

In total enrollment for the 1979-80 school year only non-public schools in Illinois had 341,923 students. The total covered kindergarten through the 12th grade level.

Public school enrollment figures are always a subject of concern and debate. The figures become very important in the General Assembly when legislation is being discussed about state finances in ratio to students. As the General Assembly tries to struggle once and for all to set down a basic state aid formula the statistics might be taking on added significance.

Movie sets readied for filming

MOVIE SETS are prepared this week on either end of the abandoned Chain of Rocks Bridge for filming of "Escape from New York" by Slam Dunk Productions. County bridge funds increased County highway department will be able to bond two larger bridges with their allocations of state funds under legislation newly approved by Governor James R. Thompson.

State funds allocated for bridge construction will remain available for 24 months. The funds have only been available for a 12-month period in the past. The added time for these funds to be used will permit counties to accumulate some of the funds for larger projects than before," the governor said.

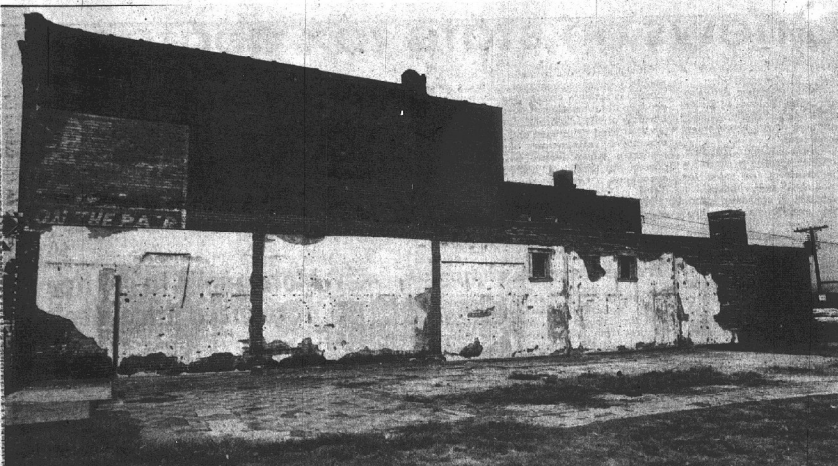

In addition, the legislation changes the matching state-to-local funds ratio from 3 to 1 to 4 to 1, the same as the federal matching ratio.

Ozark land in S. Illinois is traded

Governor James R. Thompson concluded a long-sought, state land trade Monday with the federal government involving nearly 7,000 acres in Southern Illinois, an exchange that is expected to yield better overall management of all the affected public lands.

The governor exchanged deeds with Max Peterson, chief of the U.S. Forest Service, trading 3,877.96 acres of Illinois Department of Conservation land for 3,106.61 acres of federal property. In addition, the Department of Conservation agreed to pay $5,326 to the Forest Service as the difference in the value of the properties, as determined by an independent appraiser.

Attempts were begun in 1961 to work out the details of a trade which would unify and clarify the boundaries of both federal and state lands in the Southern Illinois area.

"This trade is a convenience for both parties," Thompson said. "It will result in straightened boundaries at several locations and will provide for better management of all the lands as a result."

He is required by law to approve all inter-agency land exchanges.

Thompson said many of the tracts are located in the middle of lands owned by the other party, resulting traditionally in little or no management of much of the traded acreage.

The trade includes increases in Alexander County's Horseshoe Lake Conservation Area of 1,677 acres; increases in the Trail of Tears State Forest totaling 1,082 acres; decreases in the Union County Conservation Area of about 100 acres, and decreases in the Department of Conservation's holding at Cretaceous Hills of about 580 acres.

The U.S. is getting 2,686 acres in the seven-county Shawnee National Forest access area.

WATER TREATMENT MATH WORKSHOPS

A pair of mathematics workshops for water treatment operators will be held Thursday and Friday, Aug. 28-29, in Moline, sponsored by Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville. The workshops, part of a continuing series of training sessions scheduled in various Illinois cities by the Environmental Resources Training Center (692-2030) of SIUE, are for Class A, B, C and D water supply operators. The sessions will be repeated Oct. 2-3 in Mt. Vernon and Nov. 6-7 in Rockford.

Governor James R. Thompson signed a bill Sunday to extend scholarships to the University of Illinois to children of Vietnam war veterans and to provide incentives for state employees to participate in the National Guard or United States military reserve units.

House Bill 3197 was approved by the governor during a luncheon at the Executive Mansion attended by representatives of Illinois veterans' organizations and Major General John R. Phipps, adjutant general of Illinois. It provides that the U. of Illinois may grant one scholarship in each of Illinois' 102 counties for full tuition to a child of a person who served in the Vietnam conflict between Jan. 1, 1961, and May 7, 1975. Scholarships are provided similarly for children of veterans of the U.S. armed forces during the Civil War, World War I, World War II and the Korean war.

Preference in awarding of the scholarships by the university is given to the children of deceased or disabled veterans. In addition, the legislation authorizes state employees leave from state employment for military basic training, special or advanced training and annual training.

During basic training, or up to 30 days of advanced training, if an employee's salary for military service is less than his compensation as a state employee, the state is authorized to pay the difference.

"I hope that this added benefit will encourage state employees to join the National Guard, as well as the other branches of the military," the governor said.

Good news and bad news on state tax abatement

Governor James R. Thompson approved tax relief Monday that includes removal of the second cent from the state sales tax on food and medicine, and expanded "circuit breaker" benefits for senior citizens and the handicapped.

New tax relief will total $115 million in calendar year 1981, with measures already in effect will provide about $75 million in total relief during the year, he estimated.

"I am approving tax relief today for Illinois taxpayers which is affordable and fair relief. In addition, I will veto some additional measures sent to me by the General Assembly which we cannot afford," the governor said. "The additional one-cent reduction, which reduces the state tax on food and drugs 50 percent in just two years, keeps the promise of the Thompson administration of a year ago to provide a phase-out of this tax, as we can afford it."

"Despite an economy that is cutting state revenues, we can afford this relief."

"Expanded circuit breaker benefits also are affordable. These new benefits will help those senior citizens and the handicapped who must turn their households on limited income at a time when every dollar means something."

For a family that spends about $75 a week on food, the yearly tax relief in removal of the second cent from the sales tax will be about $40, a total of $80 yearly for the first two cents.

The new circuit breaker relief includes raising the qualifying income ceiling from $10,000 to $12,000 a year per household, and boosting the maximum grant from $650 to $700. Also, it will provide improved benefits to lower income taxpayers.

Thompson's actions Monday included:

—Approval of House Bill 276, for removal of the second sales tax cent, effective Jan. 1, 1981.

—Approval of that portion of House Bill 3294 which includes the expanded circuit breaker relief, effective Jan. 1, 1981, accompanied by a veto of a new program of grants to households qualifying for circuit breaker support called "fuel cost relief grants."

The latter program is called a duplication of existing federal programs which provide financial help for low-income families with high utility bills.

"Such new grants would only be duplicative, but also would interject the state into the national energy policy area, a clear federal responsibility," the governor said.

—Veto of House Bills 2860, 2892 and 2847, all of which would have granted exemptions from the state income tax for interest income.

"I cannot approve this legislation for four reasons," Thompson said. "First, to the extent that these calls are designed to stimulate savings deposits, such tax incentives should be a function of federal, not state law."

"Second, when relief afforded by these bills is not only misdirected to the wealthy, but is insignificant in terms of individual relief."

"Third, a combination of continued high spending, annualization of earlier tax relief, and the deep wounds of recession threaten to halve our current available balance by the end of this fiscal year. Approval of these bills under these circumstances would be financially reckless."

"Finally, one of the best features of our income tax—unlike that imposed by other states—is that it is broad-based, flat rate, and low-cost."

"Encouraging exemptions and deductions would soon riddle the base and drive up the rate, while driving job and economic opportunity away. I cannot approve of this," Thompson said.

—Veto of House Bill 2822, providing removal of all the sales tax on medicine, and removal of the second cent from food.

—Veto of Senate Bill 1457, which would provide a phase-out of the sales tax through 1982 using a categorical approach to add new exemptions over three years.

—Veto of Senate Bill 1518, which would exempt gasoline from taxation at the retail sales level.

"I reluctantly veto this bill for several reasons," Thompson said.

"First, even though there are no 'simple' dimensions to the nation's energy problems, there is one hard fact: The whole situation has been exacerbated by the federal government's unwillingness to take any level, and its reluctance to decontrol those prices."

"The result has been the development and institutionalization of a lifestyle falsely based on cheap and abundant energy. Economically unwieldy to further mess up the pricing structure, as SB 1518 intends to do by making gasoline less expensive, is economically unwieldy because it only helps put off the time when we will ultimately have to swallow the bitter pill of total price deregulation. Using gimmicks in order to conserve is unwise and ineffective."

"Second, I happen to favor the use of gasoline. I have directed the state fleet to convert to gasoline."

"I fully believe that gasoline will develop as a wise alternative energy source. It will develop, however, as soon as it is economically competitive in its own right."

"When a user can travel farther and cheaper on gasoline than on alternatives, the user will choose gasoline—and it will be for sound economic reasons which reflect a wise allocation of resources."

"To implement a subsidy, via tax exemption, merely encourages increased gasoline use which is not in fact an efficient use of resources at the moment."

"It would essentially cause people to purchase one item, which is more costly to produce than another item, because of the tax break."

"That kind of unwise and expensive allocation of resources which leaves us poorer, in terms of basic resources, rather than richer."

"Third, this is but another of a growing list of attempts to make the tax system in Illinois serve everything but its primary function—the collector of revenue with which to operate state government."

"I do not deny that taxation is a legitimate means of achieving specific government objectives. I firmly believe, however, that on the state level, in particular, use of tax policy for reasons other than raising revenue must be minimized."

"This gasoline exemption goes too far."

"It would be wise to reject this particular approach—and to stand firmly against further use of tax policy for objectives other than raising revenue, fairness and equity, tax relief, and reasonable efficiency of administration and collection."

"Part of the reason the economy of this country is so badly messed up is that we always seem to dead-end about 'doing something,' regardless of consequences, when there is an economic collapse."

"This bill is another attempt to 'do something,' and it is wrong," the governor concluded in his veto message.

Troop 7 scouts camp out

Scouts of Troop 7 at St. Joseph's Catholic Church used the Troop's new tents the first time on a campout last month at Dr. Edmund A. Babler State Park near Chesterfield, Mo., approximately 40 miles from Granite City.

Transportation for scouts was arranged by the troop committee's transportation chairman, Larry Falbe. Parents transporting scouts were Larry Falbe, Mr. Schaffne, Karl Kittel, Stephen Kusmierczak, Norman Alexander, Hugh Jordan, Jeanne Brandon, Shirley Mainridge, Jim Miller and Ted Brazel.

Troop activities included hiking, swimming, wiffle ball, darts, identification of wild plants and trees, races and compass games. New menus were also tried. Heavy rain with winds up to 30 mph did not hinder activities.

This was the first camping adventure for Senior Patrol Leader Steve Kusmierczak, as a Life Scout. He also earned his Conservation Skill Award during this camping adventure by hiking five miles. Scout Mike Brazel attended his first campout as a scout of Troop 7.

Troop members were scheduled to attend Mass, but weather forced the scouts to change their plans. After arriving back in Granite City, Father Joe Lawless, MSF (Associate Pastor at St. Joseph's and St. Elizabeth's Medical Center), celebrated a special mass for the scouts at St. John's Church. Steve Kusmierczak read the Readings and Karl Markovich and Jeff Kittel served mass.

The next camping adventure will be in mid-September when the troop will depart on a four-day camping-canoing trip at the Ozark National Scenic Riverways in Missouri.

Conservation engineers earn national award

Illinois Governor James R. Thompson on Monday accepted a government professional development award of the ASCE, executive director of the Illinois Society of Professional Engineers on behalf of the Engineering division of the state's Department of Conservation.

The governor accepted the award at the State Fair from Gary C. Brown, executive director of the Illinois Society of Professional Engineers, at the governor's tent near the center of the State Fairgrounds.

The government professional development award recognizes the ASCE Engineering Division as having the most outstanding achievement in professional development in the field of engineering employment practices of all state government engineering units in the United States. The division had to first compete with other state government engineering units in Illinois in the NSPE once every three years.

The award is given by the NSPE once every three years.

More pupils to get free or reduced price meals

Due to federal revisions in family income guidelines for free and reduced price meals at school, more Illinois school children will be eligible for the program this year.

The revised income guidelines are used to determine if a child qualifies for free or reduced price breakfasts and lunches. The maximum cost of a reduced price breakfast under the guidelines is ten cents and 20 cents for lunch.

Both state and federal dollars are used to fund the National School Lunch and Breakfast Program in Illinois.

Because of inflation, the federal reimbursement rates, which are updated every six months, have been increased for schools participating in the program. The federal reimbursement rates for the program now total 82 cents for reduced lunches and $1.02 for free lunches.

Federal dollars reimburse the schools for breakfasts where offered, at a rate of 42¢ cents for reduced and 52¢ cents for free.

The state reimbursement rate is 15 cents for both free breakfasts and lunches. Last year, Illinois schools served 15.5 million free breakfasts, 215,000 reduced price breakfasts, 70.5 million free lunches and 5.4 million reduced lunches.

While the income guidelines are the main determinant of eligibility, special hardships such as high medical costs, special education expenses due to the mental or physical condition of a child, and disaster or casualty loss are also considered.

A child can also qualify for the program if the family is experiencing a temporary loss of income due to the provider being laid off from a job. But the family's current income rate must comply with the federal guidelines. Local school officials are responsible for seeing that information concerning the school lunch and breakfast program is sent to parents at the beginning of each school year.

Current Illinois family income guidelines for the period of July 1, 1980, through June 30, 1981, are:

Family size, income level for free meals, and level for reduced meals—
One person, $5,230 and $8,150.
Two, $6,900 and $10,760.
Three, $8,580 and $13,380.
Four, $10,250 and $15,990.
Five, $11,920 and $18,600.
Six, $13,590 and $21,220.
Seven, $15,260 and $23,830.
Eight, $16,930 and $26,440.
Each additional family member, another $1,680 or another $2,610.

Seek to foster ill. coal usage

A new state law is aimed at the relaxation of sulfur dioxide standards in Illinois and the Chicago, St. Louis and Peoria metropolitan areas. Goal is to allow more use of Illinois coal.

Approved by Gov. James R. Thompson are House Bill 536 and Senate Bills 673 and 1967, which are identical changes in the Environmental protection Act. Sponsors included Rep. Monroe L. Flinn of Cahokia.

Under provisions of the legislation, the Illinois Pollution Control Board is required to adopt sulfur dioxide emission standards outside the three metropolitan areas which:

1. Are no more stringent than federal standards.
2. Are based on actual monitoring data when possible.
3. Provide a mechanism for setting specific emission standards for a particular plant.
4. Allow any control means consistent with federal law.

"If Illinois coal is to achieve its potential as a source of power free from the control of the OPEC nations, we must provide a relaxation in the sometimes unreasonable and unrealistic restrictions placed on its use. This legislation is a step in that direction," Thompson said.

Question girl about car theft

A 15-year-old girl was to meet with Granite City juvenile authorities this week in connection with the theft of an auto from Robert Hill, Dorsey, Ill., Monday night.

Hill reported that the girl said she was interested in purchasing the car and took it for a test drive from the 3100 block of Ash Avenue at 10:30 p.m. Monday. She failed to return, he said.

The auto later was found in the parking area of St. Elizabeth Medical Center and the girl was found in the emergency room, seeking treatment for a bump to her head and a sore elbow. She allegedly had a note in her pocket which had the address where she met Hill written on it.

Officers said the girl did not recall having taken the car.

The Heidke Halstead Chiropractic Clinic is offering FREE spinal check-ups and postural analysis for early detection of back problems. There will also be a FREE blood pressure screening given at the same time. Due to the overwhelming response to the latest spinal screenings at the Heidke-Halstead Chiropractic Clinic, Dr. Halstead and his associates are again offering free spinal screening and postural analysis.

A recent United States Public Health report indicates that a large number of adults — close to seventy million — have experienced at least one episode of severe and prolonged back pain in their lives. Another report indicates that more than seven million are being treated for chronic back pain, also new cases are being added at a rate of TWO MILLION a year. According to this second report, at the rate back pain is spreading in the United States, more people will suffer from chronic recurring back problems than from any other single medical ailment. Labor statistics show that 300,000 working hours are lost a month by back pain in the State of Illinois. In the past, these numbers surpassed the one million mark in 1979 with no relief in sight.

The Heidke-Halstead Chiropractic Clinic will be able to, with simple, non-invasive testing, determine the condition of the spine. Early detection of back problems is the key to prevention for future back ailments. There will be three doctors available for examining and answering questions on treatment and prevention of back problems. Call Heidke-Halstead Chiropractic Clinic (618) 452-2000 for an appointment for a FREE spinal exam and blood pressure check for you and any member of your family. Homes for Sale

Do you know why we say, "Selling a house is easy, keeping it sold is tough?"

More than 50% of all home sales have major closing problems. 50%!
 That's why CENTURY 21 Neighborhood Professionals are trained to concentrate on follow-through. No paperwork detail is too small, no processing or financial procedure too unimportant to escape our scrutiny.

Our aim is to make sure your sale closes on time and you get all you expect. We call it "Seller's Peace of Mind."

We put it all in writing in an agreement called the Action Warranty. And then we back it up with the most important agreement of all: A Handshake. We mean what we say.

Let a Neighborhood Professional sell your house. And keep it sold.
 At CENTURY 21, We'll Give Our Word To You.

Nameoki OKs lower tax levy

By RICK PEARSON

Revenue generated by the state's replacement for the corporate personal property tax has meant a decrease in the Nameoki Township tax levy for the next fiscal year.

The town board Monday night approved a levy of $130,000 for the township and $87,000 for the highway department, which are to be collected next summer. This year's levy was $225,000 for the township and $108,919 for the highway department.

Township officials approved a levy of $120,000 for the town fund and $10,000 for the general assistance fund. In the highway fund, $80,000 was levied for road and bridge work, $7,000 for the municipal retirement fund.

Township officials said the decline in the tax levy was due to an anticipated revenue increase of carryovers from the previous fiscal year.

Currently, the township is receiving approximately $5,000 more this year as a result of the replacement tax. The highway department is receiving almost $4,000 more.

No taxes were levied for the township contribution to the state's Municipal Retirement Fund for the next year because of enough carryover in the current IMRF account.

Township officials said they hoped the lower tax levy will mean lower tax bills for residents next year. However, several factors, including property reassessments and a township multiplier could negate any lower bills.

In other action on the board: Approved the request of Harold David, township supervisor, to form a committee to look into the purchase of the Stallings School building at Illinois 162 near the town hall, as a township community center.

Stallings School, along with two other Granite City schools, was closed in 1979 as a result of declining enrollment in the district.

The township has previously looked into the purchase of the school, but decided against it when school district officials announced a starting bid price of $100,000.

Since that time, however, vandals have caused some damage to the interior of the school. Township officials said they hoped this would substantially lower the price.

—Announced that an open house for the new State Park Community Center would be held Aug. 23 at 2 p.m.

Work is continuing on the community center, which was renovated in order to meet county building codes. Community Development funds were used to pay for the project.

Family life changing but still indispensable

By ELIZABETH DOUVAN
(This is the first in a series exploring "American Families in Transition.")
(Copyright © 1980 by the Regents of the University of California.)

In all cultures, families perform two crucial functions: the nurturance and socialization of children, and the regulation of sexual expression.

Are today's families faltering on both counts? Many people think so.

The acceleration of divorce rates, increased incidence of runaway wives and children, and simply the fact that neighborhoods are depopulated during the day as both mothers and fathers go off to jobs—all these are taken as signs that the family is less valued and claims less time, energy, and loyalty from people than it once did.

Everyone agrees that the American family today shows signs of strain.

But people disagree about where the strain has come from, what it means for the future and what, if anything, should be done about it.

Three main reactions are common in the media and among the experts:

1. The family as we know it is dying and we must try to recapture the strengths and sacredness, the authority that families had in the 19th Century.

2. The traditional family is dying and it's a good thing. While it served well as a basic organization of life in agrarian societies, modern industrial life will be served better by some new form of human association.

3. The nuclear family will survive the current crisis and the changes in knowledge and technology brought by our "post-industrial" society.

While the family will probably change in some ways—for example, develop greater openness and cooperation with other institutions—it will weather the transition because it serves important needs for intimacy, meaning, and self-affirmation in addition to its traditional functions of socializing the young and regulating sex.

SOURCES OF STRESS. There is no doubt that the family is stressed. Changes in our society have increased pressure on families and have created forces that can pull families apart.

A century ago, industrialization and urbanization brought a disruptive change: on the farm, family members—including very young children—worked as a cohesive unit to produce what they needed for survival.

When work was removed from the home to shops and factories, this easy, assumed, continuous family interaction and interdependence suffered a major blow.

In our own times, other changes have increased the disruptive pressure. The sexual "revolution" reduced the control of family and church over people's sexual principles and practices.

The information explosion added impetus to changes in rules of sexual conduct. Women's ability to control pregnancies allowed them to plan their lives more completely than ever before. They could stay in the labor force longer, working before they had children and when they had "completed" their families.

Some observers allege that other institutions have stripped the family of many of its traditional functions, such as educating the young and nursing the old and infirm, and so have weakened the family.

These critics claim that experts like Dr. Spock took over too much of the child raising and left parents insecure and ineffective.

Children raised by permissive parents grew up, these critics say, to be self-centered and "narcissistic," caring only for their own immediate pleasure.

Such narcissists might not have families at all, since modern birth control made the pleasure of sex available to them without marriage and certainly without risk of pregnancy.

CHANGES FOR THE BETTER. Other observers disagree with these allegations: the family may have been stripped of some functions, they grant, but the family has also had too heavy a role in people's lives in other ways.

The separation between family life and community life, which began with industrialization, was pushed too far after the second World War, when the move to the suburbs isolated families from each other and from diverse community activities.

Child raising became the focus of women's full-time commitment and work—and the test of mothers' worth. This emphasis, it is argued, put too much pressure on the parent and the child, and the family became a hearthstone.

No wonder, then, that some young people might reject the idea of creating families of their own. No wonder divorce rates rose.

According to this view, the family survived the industrial revolution and it will survive the information explosion and changes in sex roles and sexual morality.

In fact, these observers assert, some of the changes may actually strengthen the family.

Women moving into the labor force—even when their children are young—will provide a more reasonable perspective for child raising.

It will again be seen as part, but not all, of life.

Surely, such a change will relieve the child, who has plenty of work to do becoming an adult without carrying the whole responsibility for parents' lives, meaning and self-esteem.

Changes in rules and knowledge can also strengthen family ties. If young people wait longer to marry because they have access to sex before marriage, they may be more realistic about marriage and their choice of partners when they do marry.

By informing us about the realities of family life—the fact that it is varied and complicated, and usually a far cry from the "picket-fenced" perfection we thought we should create and were sure everyone else had—social science and the media may free us to work out reasonably satisfying and stable family lives.

Victorian families guarded their conflicts from public view, sometimes at great psychological cost.

Modern families can share problems more openly with relatives and friends and thus gain comfort and defuse conflict within the family itself.

SIGNIFICANCE OF FAMILIES.

In a complicated world, the family affirms our whole, most authentic selves.

We find affirmation of abilities and in worldly dealings, but the family accepts us for what we are, not merely for what we do.

Robert Frost has written: "Home is the place where—when you go there—they have to take you in."

Knowing that there is such a place is a great comfort to human beings.

Some few hardy individuals may prefer to find their satisfactions in the market—buying the services which families traditionally provided.

But most people will prefer to form families and look to them for services and, more important, for the connective tissue that defines and makes the rest of life meaningful.

In a recent national study of family, work, and quality of life, my colleagues and I found that Americans recognize that marriage and parenthood are not easy solutions to all of life's problems.

They say—much more often than people did in a similar study in the 1950s—that they have had problems in marriage, sometimes requiring professional counseling. But they value marriage and parenthood very highly—more than their jobs, leisure activities, or other aspects of their lives.

And they rate marriages "very happy" more often than people did in the 1950s.

While some have used professional services, the overwhelming majority of American adults turn to family members for comfort and advice when they face crises.

The family is still the first line of defense in trouble, and the central source of meaning and joy for most people.

A 1980 Gallup poll showed the family was the most important element in most Americans' lives by a margin of 9 to 1.

If we didn't have families, we would probably invent them. And that's apparently what we do.

Even if we find that our own particular family won't do—if it has become too oppressive or destructive—we go out and form new ones. They may be traditional or non-traditional, but families of some kind are indispensable to our humanity.

Wider use for industrial bonds

Governor James R. Thompson has just signed legislation to give Illinois communities more flexibility in issuing industrial revenue bonds as a help in attracting new business.

Affected are municipalities the size of Madison, Venice and Pontoon Beach.

Senate Bill 1712, approved by the governor on Mayors and Local Officials Day at the Illinois State Fair, will allow non-home rule communities to issue the bonds for commercial purposes, in addition to the industrial revenue bond power they now possess.

"This legislation will assist some of the smaller municipalities in Illinois in bringing new businesses to their communities by providing an added tool to use in financing local commercial development projects," the governor said.

In addition to its revenue bond expansion provision, the legislation replaces the present nine percent interest ceiling on industrial revenue issues with a floating limit that reflects changes in the economy.

BACK FROM VISIT IN CATSKILL MOUNTAINS

Mrs. Gladys Phelps of Granite City has returned home after spending two weeks in the Catskill Mountains at Ithaca, N. Y., and seeing her great-grandson for the first time.

The infant, born July 2, is the first child for Mr. and Mrs. Phil Bush, former residents of Granite City.

The mother is the former Jackie Fry, a granddaughter of Mrs. Phelps. Another visitor at the Bush home was Airman First Class Richard Alan Fry, also a former local resident and a grandson of Mrs. Phelps.

The serviceman is stationed at Bolling Air Force Base in Washington, D. C.

While in New York State, the local visitor toured Cornell University in Ithaca and visited with Mr. and Mrs. William Bush at Trumansburg.
